'Get Out' Kosygin Tells U.S.

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin today demanded the withdrawal of U.S. forces and arms from South Viet Nam and "an end to armed provocations" against Communist North Viet Nam.

The official Soviet news agency Tass quoted Kosygin as saying in Hanoi that "as long as the imperialists threaten the peoples, it is our international duty to strengthen the might and defensive capacity of the socialist commonwealth of nations, to close our ranks and give assistance to the oppressed and fighting peoples."

But Kosygin, as reported by Tass, made no mention of his earlier pledge of Soviet arms to Communist North Viet Nam in the event of an American attack.

That promise was made Sunday only a few hours before the U.S. announcement of retaliatory air attacks on military targets inside North Viet Nam.

RUINS OF HELICOPTER destroyed by Viet Cong mortar attack on U.S. base in South Viet Nam are inspected Sunday by U.S. Army officers. Seven

Americans were killed and 100 injured, touching off retaliatory air raid by U.S. and South Viet Nam planes on North Viet Nam bases.

Join Sorties Across Border

DA NANG (AP)—U.S. and South Vietnamese planes today struck at Communist North Viet Nam for the second day, hitting military camps and leaving them burning, the South Vietnamese air commander reported.

Brig. Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, flying the lead Vietnamese plane, was hit in the arm by shrapnel. He said anti-aircraft fire was heavy over the target areas.

Ky reported later the raid was made by 30 South Vietnamese propeller-driven A1E Skyraiders and four U.S. F-100s.

In Saigon, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the armed forces commander, said the raid had destroyed 70 per cent of the targets hit.

Ky identified the villages as Liem Cong Tay, That Le and Song Song, all near the frontier and along a route leading toward the border.

Ky said the four U.S. F-100s bombed an area just to the north of his target region, with excellent results.

One South Vietnamese air force plane was hit by anti-aircraft fire over the target and crashed near Da Nang on its return flight. The pilot parachuted and suffered a bruised shoulder. A second Vietnamese pilot was wounded by shrapnel in the neck but not seriously.

Ky said he understood one U.S. plane was hit by anti-aircraft fire but that there were no casualties among American personnel.

The new attack was first announced by the U.S. embassy in Saigon.

But that announcement gave no details.

It followed a series of emergency meetings in Saigon. U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor met hurriedly with acting prime minister Nguyen Xuan Quach after an emergency cabinet meeting.

Tory Rebel Demands Look At Vote Count

OTTAWA (CP)—John Diefenbaker survived a weekend bid by Progressive Conservative dissidents to force a national leadership convention, but was under pressure today to permit a scrutiny of the executive's secret poll on the issue.

JOHN D.

'Can't Go On Forever'

By VICTOR MACKIE
(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—John Diefenbaker, once again has beaten down a revolt within the Conservative party against his leadership, but his party critics today were taking heart from his declaration that he has no intention of hanging on indefinitely.

During a tough, fighting speech at the national executive meeting Saturday that aroused the ire of his opponents, he indicated that the day was not too far distant when he would be voluntarily stepping down—but not yet.

Delegates recalled the approximate words "The Chief" had used in referring to his eventual retirement were: "I am not going on forever, so if the bright young men who aspire to the leadership will restrain their impatience a little longer."

Then having given some encouragement to would-be Conservative leaders, Mr. Diefenbaker could not refrain from impishly adding that more than one outstanding British political leader had carried on actively well into their seventies and even a few into their eighties. Mr. Diefenbaker will be 70 years of age in September.

The Tory leader in the Conservative parliamentary caucus Friday made a similar reference to the day being not too distant when he would seriously consider laying down the burden of leadership.

Consequently, those who were beginning to worry that "the chief" might never think of retirement, were now coming around to the view that he has no intention of clinging to office until his years run out.

As a result, both sides in the party dispute, those for Mr. Diefenbaker and those opposed to his continuing as leader were extracting some degree of consolation from the weekend meeting.

Quebec leader Leon Balcer, who wants the 69-year-old Opposition leader replaced, said Sunday a decision to reject the convention was "in conflict with the general trend" of Saturday's executive meeting at which Mr. Diefenbaker faced his most concerted opposition since he was elected leader in 1956.

"I trust Mr. Diefenbaker will have no objection to the examination of the complete figures and the voting slips on which they are based," Mr. Balcer said.

He made the statement after party president Dalton K. Camp, in a brief press release from party headquarters, said: "As a result of the advice sought from the national executive of the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada at yesterday's (Saturday's) meeting, the proposal that the body recommend that a national leadership convention be called has been rejected."

Informants said the questionnaires, filled out by the 116 members of the executive who were present, were analysed by three men—Mr. Camp, national secretary Kenneth Binks and national director Richard Thrasher.

BIG MAJORITY NEEDED

Mr. Camp had told reporters Saturday that in his view a substantial majority in favor of a convention would be required to warrant calling one, and that the results would not be announced.

Mr. Balcer did not elaborate on his statement, but informants said the secrecy surrounding the results indicated a growing demand within the party for a leadership convention.

One high party authority estimated that fewer than five votes separated those who opposed a convention and those who favored one.

Some estimates of the result appeared based on a standing vote at the closed meeting on whether the executive should express confidence or no-confidence in Mr. Diefenbaker.

Informants said a question proposed by the principal officers on whether delegates favored or opposed asking Mr. Diefenbaker to resign was rejected by a 55 to 53 vote.

It was understood that British Columbia Conservative leader Davie Fulton stood up in favor of asking the question, and Nova Scotia Premier Robert Stanfield lined up behind Diefenbaker.

After Mr. Diefenbaker and others objected to including the

U.K. Labor MP Calls for Talks

LONDON (AP)—A Labor member of the House of Commons urged Britain Sunday to take the lead in calling a peace conference "to prevent the war in Viet Nam from spreading until it involves us all."

William N. Warbey, who recently talked with North Vietnamese chief Ho Chi Minh in Hanoi, said he found the Communist regime's proposals for a settlement "very reasonable, provided that the Americans now recognize that they would have to sit round a conference table with all the countries which participated in the 1954 Geneva conference."

He said it was time that Britain, as co-chairman with the U.S.S.R. of the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the French-Indochina war, convened the 14 participants again.

Warning Issued By Red Chinese

TOKYO (UPI)—Communist China said today it will not stand idly by while "U.S. imperialists" extend the war in South Viet Nam to North Viet Nam.

The warning came in a statement by Gen. Lo Jui-Ching, vice-premier and chief of the general staff of the Chinese army.

His statement was transmitted by the official New China news agency.

"We will do our utmost to support the Vietnamese peoples' struggle against U.S. imperialist aggression," Lo said.

"Should U.S. imperialism act in disregard of others' views and dare to impose aggressive war upon us, we are prepared and we know how to deal with their aggression."

FED UP, mystery millionaire Harry Stonehill of Vancouver announced Sunday he was leaving Canada today for New York. Mr. Stonehill said action was sparked by a threatening telephone call to him at his home. He was supposed to leave Canada, under an order by the immigration department, Jan. 9. (See story Page 3.)

CN Yard Crews Back Strike on PGE Line

VANCOUVER (CP)—A strike of 183 men on the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway had a spreading effect today as Canadian National Railway switch yard crews failed to report for work and the PGE said it planned to lease out a number of its diesel units.

The government-owned PGE did not say to what line 35 of its 42 diesel units would be leased.

CNR and Canadian Pacific Railway officials said their lines were not involved.

As the PGE remained strike-bound except for emergency services in isolated areas and 1,400 of its non-striking workers laid off because of what the railway said were threats, the CNR reported some of its switch yard men were not reporting.

A total of 86 men and yard foremen and two CNR yardmasters said Sunday they would not be reporting. A CNR spokesman said, however, that yard duties are being carried on as much as possible by supervisory and other personnel.

The action by the CNR switch crews, affecting switch yards on the Vancouver waterfront, the North Shore and at New Westminster and Port Mann, followed suspension last week of nine CNR employees. They had refused to handle freight from the strike-bound PGE and their cases now are under consideration by CNR management.

Spokesmen for Canadian National and Canadian Pacific here said there have been no similar moves on Vancouver Island.

Dock Strike Settled

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A tentative agreement reached late Sunday night in the Philadelphia dock strike apparently paves the way for an end to the East and Gulf Coast longshoremen's strike which has cost the United States $6,000,000 in commerce.

1½ TONS RAW OPIUM SEIZED IN HONG KONG

HONG KONG (Reuters)—Police announced today the arrest of a third man following seizure of a record 1½ tons of raw opium and 180 pounds of morphine on a farm near the Chinese border Sunday.

Two other men appeared in court here today and were ordered held for trial.

Authorities in this British colony said the cache represented the world's biggest seizure of opium. The drugs were considered to be worth about 2,250,000 Hong Kong dollars (about $390,000) at the current rate in the illicit market.

Police said the opium was found at a chicken farm, packed in raw rubber, wrapped in plastic sheeting and placed in hollowed-out bamboo canes. The drugs were said to have arrived from Bangkok, Thailand, by ship last Thursday.

RESCUE UNDER WAY IN PACIFIC

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The 29 crewmen of the Greek freighter Grammatiki were all rescued from their sinking ship in the stormy North Pacific Monday.

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The 29-man crew of the leaking Greek freighter Grammatiki abandoned ship in the stormy north Pacific today but two other vessels quickly began rescue operations.

The 17th U.S. Coast Guard district here said the freighter Cotton State and the motor vessel Roland started picking up the Grammatiki's crew about 45 minutes after lifeboats were put overboard.

Word of the rescue was radioed here from a long-range coast guard plane C-130 from Barber's Point, Hawaii,

BRITAIN BANS CIGARETTE ADS ON TELEVISION

LONDON (UPI)—The Labour government today banned cigarette advertising on British television.

Health Minister Kenneth Robinson told the House of Commons that Independent Television (ITV), Britain's only commercial television channel, had been told to put the ban into effect "as soon as possible."

Robinson said the government banned cigarette advertising because "the number of deaths from lung cancer in Great Britain continues to increase."

Reds Claim 10 Planes Shot Down

Radio Hanoi, monitored in Saigon, claimed Communist ground batteries shot down six planes today and four Sunday for a total of 10 in the two days of air strikes, not including damaged aircraft. The U.S. said only one plane was shot down Sunday and the pilot was reported to have ejected.

The radio said the U.S. made a total of three big air strikes against North Viet Nam and that many persons were killed in the attacks.

The Tass news agency correspondent in Hanoi said thousands of persons gathered in the city's central square today to protest against the attacks.

Khanh said South Vietnamese planes took off Sunday to take part in the U.S. air strikes at Dong Hoi, 45 miles inside North Viet Nam, but had to turn back before reaching their targets because of bad weather.

The air strike activity coincided with the arrival of the marine anti-aircraft missile battalion from California at Da Nang, the air base used last month as a staging area for U.S. air strikes on Communist supply routes in southern Laos.

Khanh said the air strikes were ordered to show Hanoi, the capital of North Viet Nam, that the South Vietnamese people were determined to defend their freedom.

Dong Hoi was the chief target Sunday of a bombing strike by U.S. Navy planes from three carriers that the United States said was in retaliation for the Communist mortar attack earlier Sunday on the U.S. base at Pleiku in central South Viet Nam.

'New, Utterly Grave Act of War'

The North Vietnamese government said: "The U.S. government must bear full responsibility for all consequences arising from its aggressive and war-seeking policy in this area."

It described the U.S. bombing as a new and utterly grave act of war.

The North Viet Nam government newspaper Nhan Dan also warned that the people and armies of the Communist nations were ready to deal "telling return blows" against the United States.

In the raids Sunday, 49 U.S. Navy planes from three carriers attacked barracks and staging

Air Strike Claimed A Defensive Action

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United States told the UN Security Council Sunday night that its retaliatory air strike against North Viet Nam was "defensive action" against "a politically timed effort" to intensify Communist aggression in South Viet Nam.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E.

Stevenson made the point in a letter to French Ambassador Roger Seydoux, president of the 11-nation council for February. He did not ask for a council meeting.

But he reserved the right "to bring this matter to the Security Council if the situation warrants it."

areas at Dong Hoi, 45 miles across the Communist border. U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara said the raiding pilots reported "heavy fires, heavy smoke and substantial damage."

The United States said the air raid was in retaliation for the Viet Cong attack about 2 a.m. Sunday on the U.S. base at Pleiku, 240 miles north of Saigon.

President Johnson said: The air strike was a "carefully limited" response to North Vietnamese aggression. "We seek no wider war. Whether this course can be maintained lies with the North Vietnamese aggressors."

McNamara told a press conference the action "was a clear and necessary response to a test and a challenge of will and purpose and policy, a test that was clearly intended as a test by the North Vietnamese against the South Vietnamese government and the U.S. government."

CHURCHILL STAMP SET

OTTAWA (UPI) — Postmaster General John R. Nicholson today announced that Sir Winston Churchill will be honored on a special Canadian postage stamp to be issued late this summer.

This will be the first time in the history of the Canada post office that a stamp has been produced to honor a person who was neither a member of the royal family nor a Canadian.

confidence motion in the questionnaire, the officers withdrew from the meeting to consider the objections raised. The Opposition leader had argued that the executive had no business expressing confidence or otherwise when the leader had been elected by the national association.

WERE UNANIMOUS — Informants said the principal officers returned to the meeting after they unanimously agreed that the question should remain.

The delegates then answered three questions—whether they favored a leadership convention, whether a national policy committee should be established, and whether Mr. Diefenbaker should attend the flag-raising ceremony Feb. 15.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who led most of his party in opposing adoption of a maple leaf flag without English and French symbols, had asked that the flag question be included to give him guidance.

Mr. Diefenbaker emerged from the meeting smiling and made it clear he planned to remain at the head of the party.

He said there had been no vote on his leadership.

"There wouldn't be," he said. "The leadership is determined by national convention, and that was determined in 1956 and ratified several times since."

Asked whether the meeting would result in any change in his policies, the former prime minister said a person's principles were a matter of conscience.

Principles were not changed "by the passing whims of any group or individual," he added.

Mr. Diefenbaker summoned a special party caucus Friday, at which he was given a vote of confidence, but was reported to have received an unprecedented barrage of criticism.

Mr. Balcer's original demands provoked a controversy among English-speaking party members on the leadership issue, and they as well as some French-speaking members were reported to have come in for strong criticism at the caucus.

Mr. Balcer boycotted the caucus, choosing instead to present his views to the executive. Before the executive he avoided attacking Mr. Diefenbaker, informants said, in a bid to keep tempers down. He was said to have called for a convention and a shift in party policy.

Mr. Diefenbaker addressed the executive for between 60 and 90 minutes, filling out the morning session that was opened by preliminary remarks by Mr. Camp and Mr. Balcer.

During the luncheon adjournment Mr. Diefenbaker mingled with reporters and delegates on the second floor of the building.

Mr. Balcer, who triggered the latest threat to Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership by threatening to sit as an independent in the House of Commons, is to meet with his Quebec colleagues this week.

government and the U.S. government.

U.S. sources speculated that the North Vietnamese timed the attacks on the Americans because of Soviet Premier Alexei Kossygin's current visit in Hanoi without his knowledge, in hopes of getting him to boost his offer of aid to North Viet Nam. They said they had no evidence that either Moscow or Peking ordered the attack.

Eight Americans were killed at Pleiku, and 126 wounded. Six new turbo-jet helicopters were destroyed. Eight other helicopters, two twin-engine transports and three light spotter planes were heavily damaged.

A Communist unit estimated at 120 men slipped past South Vietnamese guards at Pleiku in the central highlands, set off explosive charges and for 10 minutes plastered the area with captured U.S. 81-millimetre mortars.

Officials said a normal guard of 48 South Vietnamese — half the guard detachment — were on duty, along with U.S. sentries.

Viet Cong units also attacked an oil installation about the same time at Tuy Hoa, on the coast 240 miles northeast of Saigon. But no U.S. casualties were reported there.

The Viet Cong failed Sunday night in an attack on the key U.S. helicopter base in the Mekong Delta, at Soc Trang 100 miles southwest of Saigon. U.S. military sources said guerrillas fired 15 heavy mortar shells but none landed on the runway or buildings. No damage or casualties were reported.

A military spokesman said most of the aircraft at Soc Trang took off for another base about 30 miles away when the barrage began.

U.S. forces were on the alert to meet any air strikes the North Vietnamese might make in response to the raid across the border. A U.S. Air Force detachment of missile-firing F-102 jets stood ready at Da Nang. They were sent to South Viet Nam during the Gulf of Tonkin crisis last August.

McNamara announced in Washington that the United States was sending a battalion of Hawk anti-aircraft missiles to Da Nang from a Pacific base. A force of about 2,000 Vietnamese paratroopers and rangers were airlifted from Saigon to the border with North Viet Nam today. U.S. detachments at Saigon airport began putting sandbag barricades around key buildings.

In Saigon, some 1,800 dependents of U.S. military and civilian personnel prepared to leave the capital after President Johnson ordered their "orderly withdrawal."

The American community school attended by 750 students was ordered closed.

On other battle fronts, military sources reported a sharp renewal of hostilities after the lull in fighting during the week-long lunar New Year holiday.

South Vietnamese troops today were reported to have killed 220 guerrillas who attacked a government outpost in Quang Tin province, 360 miles northeast of Saigon and 130 miles northeast of Pleiku.

The Pleiku attack caused the heaviest loss yet sustained by American forces in South Viet Nam and coincided with the visit of Russian Premier Alexei Kossygin to the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi.

Prior to the U.S. retaliatory raid, Kossygin made a bitter anti-American speech before a mass rally in Hanoi and promised "all necessary assistance" if the U.S. encroached on North Viet Nam.

Army surgeons worked around the clock to save the lives of dozens of wounded at a 100-bed field hospital.

More Park Projects Set for Prisoners

Major expansion of trail-cutting and campsite construction in Strathcona Park by prisoners is confirmed in the provincial expenditure estimates.

Tabled Friday in the legislature, they include an increase of some $162,000 to a new total of $538,240 for the Vancouver Island unit and camps of the corrections branch.

Most of the increase is in provisions and shelter for the larger number of prisoners that will be accommodated up-Island in the work parties.

B.C. to Gain If Sask. Gets Water Plant

A heavy water plant in Saskatchewan will mean a solid boost to the economy of B.C.

Western Deuterium Co. Ltd., Victoria, has bid for the $500,000 contract of the plant, the second in Canada, and has recommended Estevan, Sask., as the ideal location.

Shipbuilder Harold Hsuhband, president of the company, said Estevan was recommended after a team of experts made a careful study of general cost factors, availability of fuel and the financial arrangements promised by the government of Saskatchewan.

CONCESSION

Premier Ross Thatcher told a press conference last week that he is prepared to make heavy concessions if the plant is located in his province.

Mr. Hsuhband said that if the plant is located in Saskatchewan, and Western Deuterium is successful in its bid it will mean "business for all B.C. and prairie fabricators and Victoria will get a fair share of the business."

Most of the western work would lie in the construction of towers, heat exchangers and other equipment.

Canada's first heavy water plant is now under construction in Nova Scotia. The government of that province provided 100 per cent of the financing for the project.

Delivery of the first heavy water from the new plant—which will be the largest in the world—is scheduled for 1967.

CONFIDENT

Bids on the project closed Jan. 29 and Mr. Hsuhband said he is confident that his company's bid, based on required production of 300 tons a year, would be accepted.

The plants are being built to supply heavy water for nuclear power generation.

Other companies bidding for the $500,000 contract are Deuterium of Canada, now building the plant at Glace Bay; Dynamic Power Corporation, Calgary; and Imperial Oil Co. Ltd.

The bids were called by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., a Crown corporation.

MERGER VOTE DOUBTS DISPELLED

'No'... Emphatically

The final seat of disapproval of Willow Point, not included in against in Quinsam, a 59 per cent opposition.

Citizens' Rights leader Kenneth Ford said he is arranging a counter-petition.

Results of Saturday's vote was 140 in favor, 171 against in North Campbell River, a 55 per cent opposition; 123 for and 162

So ended one phase of a bitter battle between residents in the area and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

Ever since a vote was taken Dec. 12, which proved inconclusive for the two areas, petitions and counter-petitions, accusations and denials have been handed forth between Campbell River and Victoria.

DEFINITELY OUT — Hearing of Saturday's vote, Mr. Campbell said: "The areas of Campbell River and Quinsam are definitely out of the municipality for the time being."

The only other area to join with Campbell River is Willow Point, which voted in favor at the first opportunity in December.

Meanwhile, the Citizens' Rights Organization, formed to protest the merger, is holding its fire.

They are waiting to hear the results of an attempt by Mr. Campbell to introduce new legislation to justify the manner in which the new municipality was formed.

If the new legislation is not approved, then they will attempt to dissolve the new municipality.

CLEAN BEACH AT STAKE

TAURANGA, N.Z. (CP) — A seaside resort in New Zealand is trying to make beer bottle manufacturers accept responsibility for the empty bottles.

The resort, Mount Maunganui, a popular beach on the east coast, annually accumulates vast quantities of bottles at holiday time, many of them broken. It says the bottles are clearly marked as remaining the property of the bottle company at all times so it should help in clearing them away.

The company has refused to accept responsibility. It says a beer bottle is no longer a beer bottle once it is broken.

Stonehill 'Fed Up And Won't Be Back'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mystery millionaire Harry Stonehill says he is leaving Canada today "fed up" and won't be back.

"The government doesn't want me to stay here because they are afraid of the American and Philippine governments," he said in an interview here Sunday night.

Stonehill made the comments in his third interview following two years of silence.

Friday, he described himself as a man "at the end of my rope," and pleaded: "I'm asking this country to give me a chance. Judge me by my actions in Canada. My family, myself... we want to stay here."

Sunday, he said his decision to leave Canada forever was sparked by an anonymous telephone threat against his life.

Stonehill said the government doesn't want him in Canada, and the press "has written nothing about me but lies" since he arrived here in 1963 after being deported from the Philippines by presidential order.

He said he has wound up his businesses here and has sold several of his Philippine companies. His interests in the Philippines where he built his fortune are estimated by some at $30,000,000 to $40,000,000, although Stonehill values them at less than $13,000,000.

Missouri-born Stonehill, 47, came here from Mexico after being deported with associate Robert Brooks from the Philippines.

He sought landed immigrant status for himself, his wife and five children, but was turned down and asked to leave the country. He agreed to leave voluntarily by Jan. 9.

He was arrested in the United States in January and charged with violating the U.S. Bills of Lading Act. Later, the U.S. government charged him with failing to pay $13,600,000 in U.S. income tax.

When he returned to Canada, his name was linked with a "phony" letter, supposedly from Premier Bennett, asking an assistant in Prime Minister Pearson's office to help obtain landed-immigrant status for Stonehill.

Stonehill said Friday in his first interview in Canada he did not know the author of the letter sent to Pearson aide Hal Dornan.

Premier Bennett branded the letter a "phony," and asked for an investigation.

In a television interview Sunday, Stonehill said he met Senator Louis Gelin, treasurer of the Quebec Liberal party, in Ottawa and sought his help, but heard nothing from him.

LEAVES FOR NEW YORK

Stonehill said he will leave here by plane today for New York to confer with lawyers on his March 1 hearing on the bills of lading charge.

It concerns his allegedly sending a cigarette-making machine to the Philippines in a box for which the lading bill read "agricultural machinery."

A tobacco company—as well as oil, real estate, manufacturing and investments—was among Stonehill's Philippine interests.

His wife and family will stay here—by special immigration department permission—until the end of the school year in June.

Where they will go after that is unknown. Stonehill has been in Mexico and Switzerland since being deported from the Philippines, where he was accused of tax evasion, customs violation, influence peddling and assault.

"The world is small, and if a person is thrown out of one country he is really excluded from every other country," he told a reporter.

MADDOX continue fight

'Last Supper' Served To Reporters

By The Associated Press

One of the United States' most avowed opponents of the civil rights law, Lester Maddox, closed his Atlanta restaurant Sunday rather than serve a Negro. Saturday, he had said he would serve Negroes.

After an overnight change of mind, Maddox served reporters a free meal, which he described as "the last supper," and then closed the Lester Maddox cafeteria.

"I'm going to travel across the South to areas under invasion by Communists and continue my fight," said Maddox.

Explained the segregationist: "I let others talk me into thinking I had to surrender—because of financial reasons. Is life so dear; peace so sweet and money so valuable as to exchange it for slavery? I say no."

A federal court had ordered Maddox to pay a fine of $200 a day for every day his restaurant remained open to whites only.

Probation Service To Expand

A 50 per cent expansion in probation service staff is provided in the 1965-66 provincial estimates tabled Friday.

The present staff of 82 probation officers and clerk-stenographers will be boosted to a combined total of 131.

The new positions include 38 more probation officers and 11 more clerk-stenographers which will help free the professional specialists for case work.

Salary vote in this branch will rise from $496,716 to $768,102 to provide the larger staff.

In addition, the parole board will be given a secretarial staff of two for the first time, indicating an appreciable increase of activity.

The parole board's estimates will triple to a new total of $15,184—including the regular $5,000 allowance for the board members.

United Saturday, when the story of his questioned identity broke, few of thousands who knew the Omahan were aware he had a name other than Fritz.

He had used no other name on the air. To the confusion of reporters, he used the single name in archery tournaments throughout the U.S. Midwest.

Saturday night, after his trip to the police station, Fritz and his wife—she has been a photographer's model—went into seclusion.

EAST, WEST SPLIT OVER RESOLUTION

Monarchy Must Go—Students

By ALEX MORIN

OTTAWA (CP)—After showing little enthusiasm in a long list of committee-approved resolutions on international affairs, the general membership of the Canadian University Liberal Federation set the organization on its ears Sunday with a couple of suggestions from the floor.

The most controversial was approval of a resolution advocating an end to the monarchy in Canada.

Approved by a vote of 36 to 29, it would make the governor-general Canada's chief of state in place of the Queen.

Another unexpected resolution saved for the end of the federation's annual meeting asked that the Liberal Party demand the resignation of Montreal MP Edward T. Asselin.

It said that the demand was in line with Prime Minister Pearson's call for political honesty and integrity within the party.

The resolution was prompted by a commission report which last year branded profits made in a land deal by Mr. Asselin as "objectionable, unconscionable and immoral."

READ SMALL PRINT

In a speech to CULF delegates Saturday, Prime Minister Pearson said the Conservative Party was responsible for much of the bad publicity the government has been getting, and told the students not to be misled by headlines, but to read on in the small print for the facts.

"When a party is in difficulty as is the Conservative Party, and when they are so bitterly divided as they are, you can be sure they will do everything they possibly can to take the public mind off their difficulties by directing charges, however unfounded they might be, against us."

Mr. Pearson said he was concerned about "any allegation and any charge and any insinuation" made against the Liberal Party or its members, but he would not allow "false insinuations" and "suspicious smoke-screens" to pressure me into doing the wrong thing in order to establish the right superficial image."

The resolution to abolish the monarchy was denounced immediately by Western Canada delegates. They issued a statement complaining that the resolution had come at the end of a long meeting when fewer than half the clubs were represented.

That statement was followed immediately by another issued by the new national president, 20-year-old Tony Pearson of Bishop's University, Sherbrooke, Que.

He said the decision had been made "in accord with established procedure and is the official policy of the Canadian University Liberal Federation," and would be sent to officials of the government and of the party along with all other resolutions passed.

Gib Clark of the University of Alberta, one of the opponents of the resolution, charged that late introduction from the floor had been a "technique" to take advantage of the departure of many delegates leaving the meeting early.

The resolution, sponsored by the Liberal Club of Montreal's Sir George Williams University night division, and seconded by the University of Western Ontario, is identical to one passed in January at the Ontario University Liberal Federation's "thinkers" conference at London, Ont.

The meeting also was in favor of the abolition of the death penalty and elimination of corporal punishment.

Another resolution carried by the meeting asked that Time Magazine of Canada not be made exempt from government legislation on advertising write-offs.

He told 200 delegates to the Canadian University Liberal Federation's annual meeting not to be deceived by "the headlines if inquiries and alleged misdemeanors and all that kind of thing."

"We are going to get a lot of this in the days ahead," said Mr. Pearson. "When a party is in difficulty as is the Conservative party, and when they are so bitterly divided as they are, you can be sure they will do everything they possibly can to take the public mind off their difficulties by directing their charges, however unfounded they may be, against us."

LBJ Medicare Plan Rejected by Doctors

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Medical Association's house of delegates Sunday rejected the Johnson administration's program for health care of the aged.

It voted to "endorse and enthusiastically support" a rival plan it calls "elder care."

The 234-member governing body of the country's biggest organization of physicians thus reaffirmed its opposition to a social security-financed program which would be administered by a federal government agency.

It broadened its earlier stand in favor of state programs financed with general federal tax funds and administered by the states through private health agencies.

Specifically, the AMA delegates accepted the bill now before Congress, introduced by Representatives A. Sydney Her-long, Jr. (Dem.-Fla.) and Thomas B. Curtis (Rep.-Mo.) and adopted the AMA board of trustees' promotion program for the Herlong-Curtis measure.

The promotion expense will come from the AMA's $14,000,000 reserve fund.

Expressing concern for the health of needy persons "regardless of age," the delegates concurred with the AMA leadership in urging further study of broader indigent health care.

The delegates also recommended that the AMA "make every effort to make known to the Congress" its view that professional services, such as those of the various medical branches—pathology, radiology, psychiatry and anesthesiology—"should be excluded from the provision of any bill which excludes other physicians' services."

Prints Match Dead Man But 'Fritz' Denies Tie

OMAHA (AP)—For six years as dice jockey, television sports-caster and champion bowman, his name has been his trade mark.

Today, the real name of the man known as Fritz was the prime issue in an effort to solve the mystery of a missing Ohioan.

John and Richard Bader of Akron, Ohio, contend the Omaha TV announcer is their brother, Lawrence Joseph Bader, who was declared legally dead after he disappeared in 1957.

The missing Bader's wife, Mary Lou, eventually was paid $24,579 on an insurance policy he held. She has four children.

Chicago police say an FBI fingerprint comparison shows the prints of Lawrence Bader and John F. (Fritz) Johnson are the same.

Johnson has denied he is Bader. Saturday night he went to Omaha police for a new set of prints in an effort to prove it.

Paul Crouse, who described himself as both friend and lawyer for Fritz, said Sunday his client is under care of an Omaha physician, Dr. Lee Bevilacqua, of getting information in the proper perspective, you will find our faith is not badly taken."

The question of Fritz's identity was raised Thursday night when a friend of the Baders saw Fritz at a Chicago sports show and called the brothers in Akron.

They flew to Chicago and confronted Fritz. He told them he was not their brother and suggested he be fingerprinted to prove it.

It was these fingerprints, taken at his own suggestion, which Chicago police later reported matched those of the missing man.

Smoldering Rebellion

MR. DIEFENBAKER HAS SURVIVED the most recent outbreak of rebellion in his party and for the time being faces no leadership convention. This is a personal accomplishment for the man from Prince Albert who carried the Conservatives to their great electoral triumph of 1958.

But if the rebellion has been dampened down at this time, it seems obvious that it will flare up again. Those who want a leadership convention and a new leader emerged from the weekend sessions in Ottawa far from despondent over the support they had encountered in the national executive. Certainly the dispute within the party has not been resolved and there is no indication of a reconciliation with the Quebec wing.

Phrased bluntly, Mr. Diefenbaker has said that he won't go and the Conservatives who wish him to retire have been unable to find a satisfactory way of translating their wishes into action. They may draw some comfort from his statement that he is "not going on forever." There seems little chance, however, that they will "follow John" as they did when he swept the country and brought his party out of its long period in the wilderness.

The immediate interest in the executive sessions and the Conservative caucus which preceded it was focussed on the leadership. The longer-term concern—and it is the one which is important to Canada—is the influence the discussions will have on Conservative policy in Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker has once more been confronted by an emphatic show of dissatisfaction in his party—dissatisfaction which centres on the way he has directed its affairs. He has met and beaten down similar dissatisfaction on previous occasions, but at a serious cost. He has lost good men before and nothing on Saturday indicates that he will stem the flow of important Conservatives from his following in the days ahead.

The price to the party of his continued leadership will be revealed at the next general election. In the meantime he says that the party is united though "there will always be divergent opinions and I hope that in the spirit of tolerance and understanding our divergences can be removed."

Mr. Diefenbaker clearly does not see himself as the wedge which is splitting the Conservatives apart. There are many Canadians who do not agree.

A $90 Millions Boost

THE DECISION OF MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. to spend $90 millions on expansion of newsprint and pulp production capacity at its Powell River plant will certainly add vigor to the primary resources boom which British Columbia is already experiencing.

The three-year building program, largest single private industrial investment in the province's history, will pump a lot of money directly into the economy through employment of about 900 construction workers as well as indirectly through provision of materials. The company shows great faith in the potential of British Columbia's forest resources in deciding to raise itself to first place in Canada in newsprint production.

However, while no one will deny that this move is a welcome boost for the province, it also serves to underline the dangers inherent in being as dependent as we are on basic resources. The Powell River expansion is a clear example of a "capital-intensive" industry, that is, one which requires a vast sum of money to build but which provides a commensurately small increase in employment.

When the plant is finished it will employ about 300 persons in the mill and associated logging operations, some of whom are to be drawn from other company plants. This means that the company is spending $300,000 for every job provided—two or three times the amount spent for each job created in most secondary industries.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that too much credit is being taken by the government for attracting capital to the province when it is actually the resources which are the attraction. Not nearly enough attention is being paid to the future when the need for more jobs will be acute and the primary resource industry expansion is less vigorous.

Life In a Goldfish Bowl

THE ADVENT OF SOPHISTICATED electronic devices which permit secret recording of events and conversations with great ease has prompted much concern about the degree to which personal privacy can be violated.

Mr. Alex Macdonald, the member for Vancouver-East, has brought the matter to the attention of the legislature through introduction of a bill which is designed to curtail such activities by persons acting outside the express sanction of the courts. Mr. Macdonald's proposed act would prohibit unauthorized recording of telephone messages, for instance, or the use of hidden cameras without the consent of the person being filmed or televised.

There are several questionable aspects to Mr. Macdonald's bill. He suggests that either party to a conversation could give permission for it to be recorded, although this would seem to be a violation of the privacy of the other party. And while his bill would prohibit the unauthorized use of a name or picture of a person for the purpose of "commercial promotion" Mr. Macdonald does not spell out the meaning of that clause. Would it apply to television or newspaper news coverage?

In general, however, there is merit in the bill. Certainly if the words or actions of an individual are being recorded on tape or film the person concerned should have the right to know about it and to either give or withhold consent to such recording. There is no good reason why people should have to live their lives in a goldfish bowl atmosphere simply because technological advance has made that possible.

Settlement In the Park

IN ANOTHER COLUMN ON this page Mr. C. M. Campbell, Jr., general manager of Western Mines Limited, takes exception to a news report and challenges editorial comment in this newspaper attacking his application to establish a "townsite in Strathcona Park."

The objection is indicated in the question, and it is not directed against proper regard for human comfort and enjoyment of life. The objection is that the whole concept of such a park is thrown aside when it can be invaded for commercial purposes. A mining claim is staked, development work follows, housing is required close to the site for the men engaged by the mine and their families. An area of wilderness ceases to be a wilderness and becomes a settlement in an inevitable chain reaction. What Mr. Campbell is asking is that the public should give up part of its heritage so that the group he represents can enjoy private advantage.

A 'Bridge Alliance' With Hanoi

By JOSEPH ALSOP

THE Soviet decision to send Prime Minister Alexei Kosygin to Hanoi at the head of a large and extremely high-powered delegation is the most interesting and revealing world event since the fall of Nikita Khrushchev.

It reveals, to begin with, that the new masters of the Kremlin are solidly convinced President Lyndon Johnson will do nothing further to avert a great American defeat in Southeast Asia; and they are accordingly persuaded that the North Vietnamese Communists are close to victory in the long, grim war in Viet Nam.

In this, of course, the Soviets are not alone. The same conviction, the same expectation has for some time been a dominant factor in the policies of leaders as diverse as President Sukarno, Prince Sihanouk and General de Gaulle. The Soviets were slower to reach final conclusions about the President's intentions.

What they have concluded is plainly to be seen from the sharp contrast between their past and present actions. While the Kremlin thought there was any risk of a final confrontation with the United States, they were careful not to give really serious and binding commitments to the North Vietnamese. Even the visit to Moscow of North Vietnamese Prime Minister Pham Van Dong (which surely laid the groundwork for the Soviet visit to Hanoi) at first failed to produce the results that Hanoi wanted.

Kremlin Committed

In two months or so since that visit, however, the risk of more determined American action to avoid defeat has no doubt seemed to Moscow to grow slither and slither. Because it appeared safe, the Kosygin trip was finally scheduled—and thus a commitment has at last been made from which the Kremlin cannot easily retreat.

A great deal of nonsense is being talked about the purpose of the Kosygin trip. The Soviets know the problems and intentions of the North Vietnamese Communists much too well to try to "restrain" them from grabbing South Viet Nam when they think the rich south is already within their grasp.

Kosygin may warn Ho Chi Minh to remember that the Americans are sometimes unpredictable and dangerous. He may tell Ho Chi Minh to be ready with face-saving formulas when the time comes. But that is as much as can possibly be expected in the line of "restraint."

The prime purpose of the Soviet expedition to Hanoi, however, is quite different and far more dramatic. The purpose is nothing less than to snatch from the Chinese Communists the gigantic triumph which they have been so obviously counting upon.

For it must be understood that until events took this new turn the Chinese rightly expected that they would be the real victors in Viet Nam. An American defeat in this war, as the Chinese saw it, would not merely prove Mao Tse-tung's "paper tiger" thesis; it would also expel the United States from Southeast Asia. And it would, therefore, leave all the Southeast Asian peoples, most conspicuously including the Vietnamese, completely at the mercy of their giant Chinese neighbor.

Ho Chi Minh, in other words, was to be allowed the pleasures of the victory celebration. But Mao Tse-tung was going to scoop up all the fruits of victory. And not the least among these fruits was to be an indirect defeat for the Kremlin "Khrushchevian revisionists"—those wicked doubters of the "paper tiger" thesis—that would be almost as heavy as the direct defeat of the United States.

The commitment that Kosygin is so obviously going to make in Hanoi will avert this indirect defeat of the Kremlin, although it will certainly not avert the American defeat that now threatens. After this commitment the Soviets can also take bows when the Americans have taken their licking. But there is even more to this journey than that.

"A bridge alliance" is a Chinese descriptive phrase, often attributed to the ancient Chinese, Clausewitz, Sun Tzu. It means an alliance between a small power and a remote great power, intended by the small power to protect its independence from the threat of a nearby great power. The chances are that the Soviets and North Vietnamese are now moving rather rapidly toward just such a "bridge alliance."

If this happens, what we are seeing now is merely the first intimation of a huge upheaval in the world political map. For a "bridge alliance" between Hanoi and Moscow will not merely tend to block the Chinese advance into Southeast Asia. It will also inflame relations between Moscow and Peking in a ferocious degree.

None of this makes the prospect of an American defeat in Southeast Asia look any more attractive. But at least it opens new and startling vistas.

A Child In Solitary

I was interested in Mr. Leo Nimick's charges in the House concerning children in solitary confinement at Brannen Lake school.

About a year ago I had occasion to visit the school and was dismayed to find a child penned up in a totally bare cell. Looking as forlorn as an unwanted dog in a pound he told me that he was nine years old. A school official corroborated the lad's age and said he had recently arrived under police escort from the Interior where his "crime" consisted in running away from a succession of foster homes in a compulsive search for a mother who had long since rejected him.

When I made the obvious comment that Brannen Lake was not the place for a disturbed little boy, in or out of solitary confinement, the official wholeheartedly agreed. Subsequent enquiries outside the school have strengthened my impression that Brannen Lake is too often used as a general disposal centre in the absence of appropriate facilities elsewhere.

CONCERNED.

Only Platitudes

It seems that the Times editorial staff is getting altogether too reasonable to be at all interesting. Your leaders have been full of late of "it merits our full and earnest consideration," or

"in these changing times we must be careful to consider all points before reaching a decision." These may not be exact quotes but they illustrate well enough the tone.

Something like the end has come with "The Canadian Identity," your leader concerning the speech of Mr. T. C. Douglas.

Unless Mr. Douglas has been misquoted it would be hard to find a greater collection of platitudinous nonsense than in his remarks to the Men's Canadian Club. There is insufficient room to deal with all of it but enough to ask how the speaker himself could suggest that the next election will be fought on the issues he mentioned.

What issues? National unity? Who does not agree that we must achieve it? Union with the United States? Which political party is about to suggest it? Development of industry? No one is opposed to it, certainly not any political party.

Our real need is something which no party leader has yet exhibited: the will to do and to advocate what is right, and not what may politically be acceptable, or like Mr. Douglas' pronouncements, somewhat redundant.

Looking Back

From The Times of Feb. 8, 1890:

In his report for the year, Mayor John Grant of Victoria, said it was unfortunate that sewerage work was no further advanced than in 1885. He described sewerage as "this most important and much needed work." But a by-law requesting $650,000 be borrowed for sewerage had been defeated. The matter was one that ought to receive the attention of the incoming council and ratepayers should be asked to approve a loan to build permanent sewers. There was much that ought to be done to improve streets but it could not be done until sewers were laid.

Mike on Target

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

MR. PEARSON is an old-time hockey player, the star of Oxford University's team back in the twenties, before Mike turned into Lester. That fact should be remembered as he approaches a critical parliamentary session. It may well be more significant to the country than all the obvious facts now floating in a torrent of political speculation. If the sports writers occasionally turn from their serious business session to watch Mr. Pearson play the game of politics, they will see that he plays it as he once played hockey. He plays it like Mr. Gordon Howe, who never seems to extend himself, is usually loafing around but somehow carelessly thrusts the puck into the net when his opponents are occupied elsewhere.

Mr. Pearson has scored at least six goals in the first period of the championship series, though the spectators hardly noted them, their eyes being glued on the wrong end of the rink and the referee dozing against the boards.

A new Canadian flag, a formula to bring the Canadian constitution home, the unification of the armed services, a contributory old-age pension scheme, an automobile deal with the United States, a reconciliation with French Canada—these are definitely goals plus some other assets, by any reckoning, even if they haven't appeared yet on the official score board and are generally ignored in the shouting.

But He Scores

The spectator may approve or disapprove them. He may be rooting for or against the scorer. But Mr. Pearson has scored all the same by his curious style of deliberate indirection—never the long slap-shot, never the one-man rush down the ice, always the quick, unexpected flip out of the scrimmage.

"Nothing appears to happen until it is over, no one quite knows when or how it happened, and no one is more surprised than the star performer."

If Mr. Howe were to enter politics he would play exactly, one suspects, like the prime minister. You might suppose that they were trained by the same coach. Both are old men now, as age is measured in their professions. Both save their energies and seem to be lingering far behind the puck. Both are always systematically double-checked by the opposing team because both are deceptive, calculating and most dangerous when they look beaten.

There is one big difference, however, between the game in the National Hockey League and in Ottawa.

Mr. Howe doesn't have to worry about his team. They feed him the puck and protect him in the pinch. His problem is the other team. Mr. Pearson's problem is his own team, not his opponents who are generally in disorder and fighting with their captain.

Over and over again, as Mr. Pearson is all set to score, his team mates fall on their faces and spoil the day.

It is pretty ragged hockey, far below the standards of NHL, so ragged and confused indeed that the spectators seldom see where the game is going and have yet to realize that Mr. Pearson is doing just what he intended, hugging and rather chaotic but with his eye on the puck.

Difficulties

He feints, wriggles and retreats behind his own goal. Frequently he is lost in the melee until the crowd wonders who is captaining the team. He collides with an adversary and limps off, apparently too shaken and bruised to play again this season. His sweater is torn, his boots cut, his skates twisted, his stick broken. He wastes a hundred shots, sometimes on an open net.

Then, at the most improbable moment, the puck trickles past the goal-keeper, so slowly, so unobtrusively, that the referee overlooks it. Strangely enough, the loudest cheers for this decision come from Mr. Pearson's fans and fellow players because they expected him to play in a different style. Some want him to play on the right wing, others in the centre and what nearly all of them have failed to understand, from the start, is that he has always been a natural left-winger since his Oxford days.

He may accidentally slither down the right now and then to please the crowd, he may lurch into centre but his true position, as the sports writers should have guessed long ago, is on the left.

The Liberal managers thought they were hiring him for the right wing, or perhaps for the defence line against the risk of any change in the game. They forgot to study their man in advance. Now they can't believe the score and await the second period with panic. Well, that's hockey.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

An experiment started some months ago, with very little fanfare, has now reached the point where McPherson Theatre business manager, Robert Ellison, can say it's a success.

This is the endowment of seats in the theatre, at $10 each, with money going to assist in overhaul and renovation of the chairs and for small plaques on each one to name the donors.

It isn't a new idea, Mr. Ellison points out. It has been done in New York and at Canada's Stratford. In these instances, however, strong campaigns were waged at the same time to bring in the donors.

"Even then, after the first rush of interest, enthusiasm cooled and it wasn't what you would call an unqualified success."

When the project was launched here no one knew what to expect.

An organized campaign was not feasible. There were too many other things to do if the theatre was to be ready for this February.

"We had a few good stories in the press," Mr. Ellison says, "and immediately donations began to come in."

"The people of Victoria not only liked the idea, they were willing to support it as well."

In his office is a chart of the 837 seats in the theatre, with their locations. Only 200 are still in need of donors. He is confident that by opening night, or very soon after, most of these will have donors' plaques on them, too.

Check down the list of the ones who have endowed chairs, as I did the other morning, and you find that donors represent many different groups in the city as well as individual citizens in every walk of life.

Chairs have been given in memory of those who are dead and for some who were killed in battle. Among these last I found a father had named a chair for his son, WO R. H. Walton, RCAF, killed in the Second World War, and a son had remembered his father, Sgt. L. T. N. Morgan, killed at Vimy Ridge in 1917.

Organizations and clubs, from singing groups to fire-fighters, have their names recorded on the chairs.

The Amity Singers, Chapter N, PEO Sisterhood, the Knights of Columbus, Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs, Victoria and Oak Bay Fire-Fighters, Greater Victoria Teachers' Association and the British Columbia Young Societies are examples of the great range of support amongst these donors.

Names of individuals record the interest of members of old-time Victoria families, as well as newcomers to our city.

Mrs. Dora Cavendish, a Dunsmuir daughter, has her name on a number of chairs, alongside her friend, famed actress Tallulah Bankhead. Princess Chikmatoff, the former Jennie Butchart, has endowed chairs. Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Skillings are donors. Both were active in little theatre work, at one time, with the Beaux Art Society.

Major Cuthbert Holmes' name is there, also Mrs. Ainslie Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cameron, Mr. Cecil Ridout and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Humber.

Daughters and sons have given chairs in honor of their parents. Among these is the young Victoria lawyer, Miss Anna Wootton, who has named a chair for her father, Hon. Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton.

Every member of Victoria City Council has named one or more chairs. The Chinese community is represented with many donors, including the well-known Koo Shee Chan and Chew Leung families, in each case with chairs for every one in their large family groups.

Those who brought music and theatre to Victoria and to western Canada are not forgotten.

There's a chair in memory of the late Georgina Watt Hobbs, well-known singer in this city. It was given by her husband.

Two chairs record the memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cole. He had a chain of movie and vaudeville theatres in Alberta in early days. Next to these seats is one named for a Cole daughter, Enid Van Buren, well-known here for her work as director, actress and successful writer of plays. A. three seats were given by another Cole daughter, Mrs. Peggy Rumball.

Other donors, taken at random from the long list, include Sir Robert Holland, Lady Mayne, Mr. and Mrs. Newall Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mayne, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burgess, Mr. Gilbert G. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Adams, Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Grieve, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. von Ilberg, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Shepherd, Miss Wendie Watson, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hamill, Major and Mrs. A. E. Squart, the Major A. G. Piddington family, Mr. and Mrs. Erik V. Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Foethel, Mr. and Mrs. Dickson Falconer and Dr. and Mrs. Clayton Smith.

Seats have been upholstered in crimson red fabric. Plaques are centred high on the backs where they can easily be read.

The tremendous response to the donor idea proves that Victoria citizens are definitely in favor of a civic theatre, Mr. Ellison believes.

He adds that right now they are proving it all over again in their support of the opening performance on Feb. 25.

He predicts it will be a sellout.

'Five Wise Men' Suggested UN Debt Referees

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A firm proposal but as a "personal idea," saying that he "wondered whether it might be of value."

Pearson would be the only head of government on the group, as outlined by Quaison-Sackey. The other four would be — UN Secretary-General U. Thant, Poland's Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki, Carlos Sosa-Rodriguez of Venezuela, former assembly president, and Quaison-Sackey himself.

The group would travel to Moscow, Paris, London and Washington in search of solutions to the problem of debt to the Soviet bloc, France and others to UN peace-keeping forces.

An informed source said Sunday the assembly president has circulated the suggestion not as Norway's Foreign Minister Halvard Lange was mentioned as a possible alternate member.

A Canadian spokesman confirmed that the idea had been put to the Canadian delegation and reported to Ottawa. It was not known when a reply would be made.

While Quaison-Sackey mentioned only the problem of past debts, first reaction among UN delegates was that the assembly now and returning Sept. group, if formed, should also consider the whole dispute over methods of raising and financing peace forces.

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

(Mr. Fisher is the member for Port Arthur riding for the New Democratic Party.)

Let's resist the present urge to advise the Conservatives and cover several disparate topics, each more or less political.

Maybe it has been the bulkiness of the newspaper coverage or the length of the cast of characters. Anyway, I had come to the conclusion that the Dorion Inquiry was shaping up as more humorous than sinister. This judgment was reinforced by encounter with federal Liberals who seemed pleased that it had not shown up much that involved cabinet ministers.

Now I have had to reverse myself after speaking with several correspondents who have been covering the inquiry. They are authors of much of the comment you and I have been reading about the proceedings before Justice Dorion.

They were shocked that I should have the impression from their stories that there was anything basically droll or light or Damon-Ryunyonesque about it.

To the contrary, they say that the story grows more serious and ominous day by day; that many of the witnesses have been feeble and inconsistent; that Justice Dorion faces a much more difficult and complex situation than the politicians imagined as they wrestled in the House over the terms of reference of the inquiry.

Quebec was the source this past week of another rash of stories about Jean Lesage gearing to succeed Lester Pearson. Since these speculations were written by men of some reputation in Quebec journalism there must be some substance to it.

Mr. Lesage may have the ambition and his western tour may bring him warming responses. He may be ready to lead the country but is the Liberal party, let alone the country, ready to have him?

Mr. Lesage and his protagonists, of whom some meet few in Ottawa) might contrast his record and general stance with that of Louis St. Laurent, prior to his choice as Grit leader.

Mr. St. Laurent had been above or detached from partisanship in a rather unique way. He had not been a vociferous advocate of provincial rights.

It would seem reasonable that Mr. Lesage's chances as next Liberal leader would be best if his leadership were the 'Sine Qua Non' for the Liberals to hold the majority of seats in Quebec. Doesn't such a need seem unlikely in the immediate future, given the Tory disarray? It would seem even more reasonable to me that the country as a whole might want a French-Canadian as prime minister if it was desperately anxious to keep Quebec in Confederation.

Have you noticed such anxiety? I haven't. Of course, I haven't spotted any strong tendency to have Quebec out, and lately, even the Lesages have been assuring us that Quebec does not want out. Thus Mr. Lesage seems no more the prospective saviour of Confederation than does John Hobart.

I would put the Lesage chances of succeeding Pearson about on par with those of Ross Thatcher, the Saskatchewan premier. Indeed, it would be my opinion that Rene Levesque would have a better chance to capture the nation's imagination. Mr. Lesage is a very old-fashioned politician in style and speech. He is florid, bombastic, and much of the time just too smoothly smooth in the Chevrier fashion to captivate the voters of today who want some directness and candor.

This is only my opinion, of course. It will be in the process of being disproved if you begin to hear talk from Liberals such as Mitchell Sharp or Paul Hellyer about the great Liberal tradition of alternating leaders; Blake, Laurier, King, St. Laurent, Pearson, and perhaps Lesage?

So far, it has been the other way in that I've been hearing Liberals ask rhetorically: is it really necessary that we go on with this business of alternating French and English?

'Big Challenge' In Power Demand

PORTLAND (AP) — Development of hydro-electric power in the next 10 years will be a big challenge, Bonneville Power Administration said today.

Charles F. Luce, administrator, said in the agency's annual report that "in the next 10 years we will have to accomplish as much in hydro-electric resource development as it has taken us all of this century to accomplish."

Among highlights of the last fiscal year, Luce listed the treaty with Canada for power development on the Columbia River, and the high-voltage intertie between the Pacific northwest and Pacific southwest. U.S. Congress appropriated $42,200,000 last year to begin construction of federal portions of the line.

Luce said Bonneville still is ahead by $19,900,000 on its schedule of payments to the U.S. treasury for federal investments in dams and transmission lines.

Newsprint Firm Places Bid For U.S. Company

NEW YORK (AP) — A Canadian newsprint producer wants to buy Doeskin Products, Inc., a firm Lowell Birrell, its former chairman, is accused of having used in stock frauds.

Consolidated Paper Corp., Ltd., said today it will offer $5.25 a share for the Doeskin stock, totalling about 1,380,000 shares. Consolidated had 1963 sales of $110,000,000.

Doeskin, which had net earnings of $432,025 or 25 cents a share in 1963, has been operated by a United States district court since 1960.

Birrell fled to Brazil in 1958, but returned several years later to face charges of stock fraud involving more than $20,000,000. Doeskin was one of several companies he allegedly used to build a personal fortune.

ARMSTRONG MISSES AGGREGATE

Young Rink Steals Show

A rink entered by brothers Lloyd and Ken Larson captured the grand aggregate in a playoff but most of the plaudits went to the "losers" in the 13th annual Victoria Curling Club bonspiel.

An Esquimalt Junior High School rink skipped by 14-year-old Jim Armstrong "caught the fancy of the curlers by finishing up in the finals of two events and just missing the aggregate honors."

Larson defeated Armstrong 6-5 in an extra end of a special playoff for the aggregate title. The playoff was set up after each rink won a primary event to finish regular bonspiel action with 6-1 win-loss records.

Supporting the Larson brothers were Steve Shea and Gus Macdonald, Armstrong, finalist in the Island schoolboy championship this year, was backed by Gord Paterson, 15; Brock Emberton, 14, and Dave Vyner, 13.

The Esquimalt youngsters upset Lyle Garraway's rink 7-3 in a semifinal and then captured The Daily Times (B-1) event by defeating Ed Porter's entry 9-5. They are the youngest rink ever to win a major title in the 13-year-old history of the "spiel."

While the youthful Armstrong rink stole the show, a heart-warming victory was also recorded by Ralph Sindén, an Oak Bay policeman who won the Northwestern (B-2) event. Sindén had hoped to play with "any rink" but when he couldn't find a vacancy, he put his crew together at the last minute.

Veteran Larry Marshall skipped a rink to two event finals, and won both. The rink was originally entered by Gar Taylor, but the veteran city sportsman was taken ill earlier in the "spiel. Marshall moved up to skip and Dick Pick came in to play third when the rink stepped into a new competition.

Keith Dewar's Chemainus entry, skipped by two-time provincial champion Glen Harper, was the only out-of-town entry to win an event.

Combination Soccer

Hotspurs downed Island Tug 5-2, Rangers defeated Malahat 4-1 and Royal Roads tripped Falcons 4-2 in Saturday's Combination Soccer League games.

Arnet Quartet Wins B.C. Title

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Jack Arnet and his unpredictable rink from the University of British Columbia waged a stunning reversal here Sunday to beat Buzz McGibney of Trail and capture the B.C. curling championship.

Arnet and all three of his crew were almost hopeless in the first game of the best-of-three series when they lost 13-9 but came back with an incredible sweep, beating McGibney 19-8 in an extra end afternoon game and 9-4 Sunday night.

In the rubber match, Arnet, a native of Port Alberni, himself missed only one shot. It takes third Terry Miller, second Glen Walker and lead Soren Jensen to the Canadian championship in Saskatoon March 1-5.

SNELLING SETS PACE

Mayfair Tops In Team Test

There's a line in the bowler's handbook which reads, "Don't blow the easy ones—every pin counts." Never did every pin count more than in the Victoria Tenpin Association's 25th annual team event championship Saturday and Sunday at Aurora Lanes.

When the firing finished last Sunday only 17 pins separated the first three teams.

Mayfair Lanes—quintet took the glory and gold, rolling an aggregate 3,023 including handicaps.

Des McGimpsey was second with 3,013.

Harknett Fuel took third with 3,006.

Every team relies on a strong anchor man and of all the 74 pivotal figures Keith Snelling was the most productive. He smashed the wood for a brilliant 647 series, giving him the early lead in the all-events scratch race going into singles and doubles play next weekend.

Other individual honors went to Rick Blake and George Diamond.

Diamond demolished the Big Four split, a feat which earned him an ABC chevron.

Blake is a mere two pins behind Snelling in the all-events chase with a 645. Orel Moreau is third with 641.

CALGARY (CP)—Two Ontario high school students, Petra Burka of Toronto and Don Knight of Dundas, Ont., dominated the Canadian figure skating championships that ended here Saturday.

Miss Burka, who successfully defended her senior women's singles title, will go to the world meet in Colorado Springs March 2-6 to try for this nation's first world women's figure skating crown since Barbara Ann Scott won in 1948.

Knight, Canadian men's champ, will be fighting longer odds when he seeks the world crown won in 1963 by Canada's Donald McPherson.

Toronto skaters won the other two senior competitions in the Canadian championships Saturday. Carole Forrest and Kevin Lethbridge took the senior ladies crown and Susan and Paul Huehnergard won the senior pairs title.

Both couples, along with Miss Burka, 18, and Knight, 17, were named to Canada's world championship team.

The Victoria husband-wife team of Jim and Mary-ellen Hibak finished fifth in the senior dance competition with 158.11 points.

Miss Burka, Canadian woman Athlete of the Year in 1964, finished third in last year's world and Olympic competitions. The 1964 world women's champion, Holland's Skjokke Dijkstra, has turned professional.

All skaters named to the world team also were named to the team for the North American championships in Rochester, N.Y., Feb. 19-21.

Delbrook Edges Esquimalt High

Local clubs topped to defeat in a pair of exhibition high school games played against Vancouver teams Saturday at Esquimalt High.

Ed Richmond was the individual star of the night. He fired 30 points to lead Hans-worth to a 56-46 triumph over Claremont, which was paced by Ken Newfield (13 points).

Henry Pakos and Doug Pearce each scored 20 points for Esquimalt, but the host school dropped a 62-60 thriller to Delbrook. Bob Lidgate topped Delbrook snipers with 20 points.

Totems, Bucks Keep Underlings in Check

Seattle Totems and Portland Buckaroos wedged themselves tighter into the driver's playoff seat Sunday and kept other Western Hockey League clubs confined to a game of musical chairs.

Seattle scored a power-play goal in overtime to edge San Francisco Seals 6-5. The result kept Seals in fifth place, two points behind Victoria's Maple Leafs.

The Leafs, not quite convinced they have a playoff spot, also received help from the Bucks. Portland, using reserve goalie Dave Kelly, dumped last-place Los Angeles Blades 5-1.

The Blades, who come into Victoria's Memorial Arena Tuesday night, remain five points behind the Leafs and three behind Bud Poile's Seals.

HEAD HURT

Kelly didn't let down the Bucks Sunday as he kicked out 22 shots. He substituted for Don Head after Portland's regular netminder bruised a leg when the Seals thumped the Bucks 6-4 in a Saturday night game.

The Buckaroos rapped in three quick goals in the first period and coasted to victory. Connie Madigan, Tom McVie, Art Jones, Cliff Schmutz and Bill Saunders scored for Portland, while Kelly missed only on a shot by Brian Smith.

Gary Dornhoefer, scoring his fourth and fifth goals in two nights, sparked Seals' Saturday night victory which brought the "Friscans" to within two points of Victoria.

TWO FOR SMITH

Defenceman Dalls Smith also connected twice while Al Nicholson and George Swarwick added singles.

Dick Van Impe, Art Hebenstreit, McVie and Schmutz hit for Portland.

Head injured his knee at 6:20 of the third period.

In Seattle, San Francisco's Tom Thurlby was whistled off the ice on a penalty in the overtime period and Mo Mantha charged up to fire at the Seals' goal from 30 feet.

Ray Kinasevich, in front of the net, flipped it past Seals goalie Bob Perrault for his second tally of the night.

Other Seattle scorers were Bill Dineen, Gerry Brissan, Al Sabourin and Gordon Sinclair. San Francisco goals were contributed by Nick Mickoski, Wayne Connelly, Len Haley, Nicholson and Charlie Burns.

Fast Indoor Mile

SEATTLE (AP)—John Camien of College of Emporia, Kansas, ran a mile in 4:01.7 Saturday for the fastest time of the current indoor season. Camien's time in the Seattle Invitational indoor track meet beat the 4:03 posted last week in Boston by John Davies of New Zealand.

Casper Conquers Pressure, Palmer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Billy Casper, facing intense pressure from Arnold Palmer and young Tommy Aaron, holed a three-foot putt for a birdie on the final hole to win the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic Sunday.

The 33-year-old Casper, who had been near but not close enough to win in three tournaments this year, shot an over-par 72 for a total score of 348 in the 90-hole golfing marathon. He won $15,000.

Palmer and Aaron each had a 70 for 349s to pick up $6,500.

Marlene Triumphs

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Marlene Streif of Fontville, Ont., won the 47th annual Palm Beach Women's Golf Championship Saturday with a 4 and 3 victory over Nancy Roth of Hollywood, Fla.

Victoria Pair Paces Cross-Country Field

VANCOUVER—Two long-striding runners from Victoria galloped home ahead of a big field Saturday in the annual invitational cross-country race at University of B.C.

John Valiant, a sophomore at Washington State, covered the four and one-half mile course in 20 minutes, 31 seconds to finish in first place. Five seconds behind was John Cliff.

Both Valiant and Cliff were competing for the Spartan Track Club.

The Spartan "A" squad finished second in team competition with 29 points under the reverse order of scoring.

UBC was third with 46 points, followed by North Burnaby (62), St. Martin's (70) and Vancouver "B" (119).

Steve Sullivan of the Spartans was ninth in the 38-runner field. Other Victorians were Norm Patenaude (17th), Jim Eaton (18th), Dave Thorne (19th), Dave Rasmussen (20th), Brian McDonald (25th), Stu Bailey (26th) and Craig Murray (37th).

TIME OUT BY JEFF KEATS

"I'm afraid they've had it as soon dogs!"

Another Pro Grid Loop Born

NEW YORK (AP)—Professional football's newest league christened itself the Continental League Sunday because "we're the third league."

The 10-team league also established a 14-game schedule that will begin in mid-summer and instituted the sudden-death rule for all tie games.

"Our level is the third league," said Sol Rosen, a member of the executive board and general manager of the Newark franchise.

"We picked a name for our league that was synonymous with what the Continental League implied in baseball."

OUTLINES AIMS

The Continental Baseball League was supposed to become the third major league until it was disbanded when the two existing leagues expanded.

Rosen also said the new league will "obtain the best ball players available," but won't compete with the established National and American Football Leagues.

The new league will consist of Philadelphia (taking over the Canton franchise), Toronto (replacing Montreal), Charleston, Wheeling and Fort Wayne (formerly Indianapolis of the UFL) and Newark, Richmond, Springfield and Hartford of the ACF.

The 10th team will be Providence. The ACF also plans to keep a team in the city.

DAYSMITH, WHITTAKER HEADING FOR ENGLAND

Two players developed in Victoria shuttle ranks have been named to a four-player squad that will represent the Canadian-Badminton Association in the All-England tournament in May.

Victoria's Sharon Whittaker, now teaching at University of Toronto, and Allison Daysmith, attending University of Washington, will form the distaff portion of the squad.

Also selected were Wayne Macdonnell of Vancouver and Montreal's Yves Pare.

Sending the quartet to England is part of the Canadian association's development plan.

EIGHT STRAIGHT!

Corners Keep United Rolling

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Little things mean a lot. And Victoria United's lot in the Pacific Coast Soccer League has taken on added lustre because of meaningful bounces that have been originating from corner kicks.

A corner proved to be the decisive manoeuvre Saturday as United, chilled Vancouver Firefighters 1-0 to stretch its undefeated streak to an eighth straight game.

Corner kicks set up two of the three goals the previous weekend when United clipped Columbus 3-2. All were taken by Bert Soutar, who in recent weeks has developed into one of Victoria's most valuable forwards.

BALL CONNECTS

Soutar's lob from the corner early in the second half was trapped by winger Dunc McCaig who, in turn, relayed the ball to Russ Bai. The latter's hard drive provided United with its 20th goal in the team's last eight games.

Soutar's presence seemingly has added considerable punch to United's attack. The team managed to score only four goals in its first five games of the season.

Saturday's victory brought United to within four points of the co-leading Firemen and Vancouver Canadians and all but clinched a playoff berth for Victoria, which has won four and tied four of its last eight games.

SPARKING EFFORT

Perhaps it was fitting tribute that Ball scored the winner. The youthful inside was outstanding for Victoria and more than made up for a 50-50 performance the previous weekend.

Halfbacks Bill Hamilton and George Paul also stood out for the Uniteds.

Pat Knott Shares Three City Titles

Pat Knott emerged as the only triple winner as the two-day Victoria and District junior badminton championships were completed Sunday at the Racquet Club.

She partnered Leslie Sluggitt to take both the under-19 and under-17 girls' doubles crowns. The Brentwood pair downed Carol Gibson and Jackie Burling in the top girls' event and bested Cordova Bay's Cathy and Diane Schmelz in the under-17 final.

Miss Knott also paired with Lake Cowichan's Gerry Shackelford for a hard-fought, marathon win over the Racquet Club duo of Miss Gibson and Bill Chudyk after losing in the under-17 mixed doubles final to Cathy Schmelz and Joe Saywell of Lake Cowichan.

As expected, Miss Gibson and Chudyk came out on top in under-19 singles finals.

Quick Rickin New Role; Chinooks Even Playoff

KEN GREGORY
floor general

VANCOUVER—Although he seldom hits the hoop headlines, Rick Barnswell has played a valuable role for the Chinooks all through the Inter-City Junior Basketball League season.

Defensive specialists seldom bask in glory.

Barnswell is quick, poised and the owner of a sure pair of hands. He's the man Chinooks often send out to handcuff scoring aces on rival clubs.

Slender Rick handled his checking chores well enough during the regular season to get Chinooks over some rough spots and into a first-place finish. He added some fine playmaking but the scoring heroes he left for the taller types.

Barnswell reversed his role here Saturday night and saved the Chinooks in the second game of the best-of-five playoff final against Vancouver CYO Saints.

He walked to the free-throw line with 31 seconds remaining in a cliff-hanging battle and Chinooks holding a shaky 66-65 lead. He calmly dropped two gift tosses for his only points of the night and probably the most important part he has collected in his hoop career.

Saints battled back to again slice the margin to a single point but Chinooks retained possession in the final few seconds to chalk up 68-67 triumph and deadlock the series at one game each.

The series will resume Friday at Victoria's Central Junior High School.

Chinooks were hampered by being able to get only limited service from John Lauvaas but came up with a fine team effort to nip the reigning Canadian champions.

GREGORY BOYS SHINE

Front and centre with Barnswell in the glory parade were the Gregory brothers, Doug and Ken. Doug did an excellent checking job of CYO ace Ed Suderman, who managed only 13 points before fouling out in the fourth quarter. Ken was the Chinooks' stick to their system and steady through the hectic second half.

Ken Jackson tossed in 21 points to pace Victoria snipers and Barney Spaven was a valuable rebounder after stepping in for Lauvaas.

Lauvaas injured an ankle in the playoff opener Friday. He started Saturday after all-day treatment but had to leave after four minutes when he turned the other ankle, first injured about three weeks ago.

Lauvaas hobbled back in the second half to contribute four field goals, each one coming after the Saints had sliced the Victoria lead to two points.

Scoring: Chinooks—Lauvaas 12, K. Gregory 9, Jackson 21, Barnswell 2, Spaven 6, D. Gregory 5, Bowler 13, Hunter 10, Frank Newman, Total 68. CYO—App 22, Howe, Murray 11, D. and S. Worboys 6, Bingham, Robertson, Brooks, Suderman 13, Kettler 20, Total 67.

Price connected for 21 points Sunday as Grocers ran up an early 22-5 lead and were able to coast the rest of the way. Lorimer matched his 21-point effort and Simmons again had 14 for the Haidas.

Oarsmen Cinch Top Rugby Spot

James Bay Athletic Association bounced from behind Saturday at Macdonald Park to down Oak Bay Wanderers 14-9 and cinch the league championship in the first division of the Victoria Rugby Union.

FALSE TEETH

That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you just sprinkle a little PASTETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor breath". Get PASTETH at drug counters everywhere. Advt.

Wanderers looked like probable winners in the early going as they grabbed a 6-0 lead, but the Oak Bay crew couldn't hold the hard-driving Oarsmen in the home stretch.

Bob Coutts, Ross Irving, Jerry Montgomery and Emil Wegwitz each scored a try for JBAA and Jack Patrick added a conversion.

For Wanderers, Ken Shitell scored a try and Don Burgess booted a pair of penalty goals.

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1965—PAGE 11

Arthur Mayse

Disenchantment is a regrettable but necessary part of education, and we learn from experience that all is rarely as it seems.

I offer this quacking platitude as window-dressing for one of the profound disillusionments that overtook our household in the years before Ron was borrowing my socks, and daughter Sue had sprouted half an inch taller than her mother.

One day back then, we got a letter three times re-directed, in a stained and tattered envelope which someone along its route had obligingly patched. The envelope flouted an Alaska postmark.

It arrived on a Saturday when the children were home. They speculated about it while we dealt with the usual batch of soap come-alongs, notices of meetings and bills.

Alaska is practically next door, but the kids fussed over that letter as if it had come from somewhere below the equator.

Who did we know in Alaska, they demanded. Were there relatives up north they'd never heard of?

"No," I told them, "not even a 42nd cousin."

I tore the end off the envelope, unfolded the letter and recovered some snapshots which had tumbled out.

Meanwhile, Ron had peeked at the signature.

"We do have relatives in Alaska," he announced. "It's from Cousin Ollie!"

And so it was, to Win's and my befuddlement. But the letter made all clear.

In two sheets that fairly reeked of the wild and heavy northland, the writer let it be known that he had, in a fit of whimsy, adopted me as an honorary cousin after reading five parts of a wilderness-background serial I'd once written.

"Had to wait for spring break-up to get the sixth," he explained, and added that he meant to stop by for a visit on his way to the Outside.

The date he'd set was less than a week distant.

Anticipation mounted as the days passed. Any number of times, Sue and Ron studied the snaps that accompanied the letter. In one, Cousin Ollie stood on snowshoes outside his trapper's cabin by a river with an unpronounceable name. Another showed him squatting in a canoe, his grin framed in a parka's fur-trimmed hood.

The morning of Cousin Ollie's visit arrived, then the afternoon. The kids waited at the top of the drive; they'd decided it wasn't really likely he'd bring all his huskies with him, just his faithful lead dog he'd written us about.

About five o'clock, a cab turned into the drive. Ron and Sue ran down. Win and I went outside to greet the awaited guest.

Spryly out of the cab hopped a greying little man in a blue suit and a hat which was a ringer for the fedora I wear once or maybe twice a year. There were no huskies.

Not even the faithful dogteam leader. Only Cousin Ollie, in his dapper blue suit, with beaming smile and brisk hand-shake.

"Have a good season?" I asked him when we were settled indoors.

"Good season?" Cousin Ollie repeated, obviously puzzled.

"On the trapline," I said, and drew a chuckle.

"I haven't trapped for years," Cousin Ollie said, while the faces of our young lost their glow, and romance flew out the window. "I'm in the plumbing business now."

Through dinner and a long evening, we listened, not to tales of outdoor adventure amid the rigors of the Alaskan wilds, but to a thorough breakdown of the plumbing business in Fairbanks, or perhaps it was Anchorage.

In any case, except for more burst pipes, it might have been Victoria, and Sue and Ron took themselves quietly off to bed, well before their usual time.

And ever since, when some attractive but unproved proposition comes our way, we wait on conviction before unleashing our hopes.

It could be another Cousin Ollie!

A GIRL'S HEART can't be bought—especially on the one day of the year when true love knows no bounds. Valentine's Day. With this thought in mind Garry McLeod set out today to find a nominal token of his appreciation for the fair sex. He soon discovered from store girl Donna Walton, the "nominal" could run to Valentine coats...

P-f-f-f-t Law Again Sought By Legislator

Mrs. Lois Hagen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood) will try again this session to ban fireworks in the province.

She has posted notice of intent to introduce a private bill to the legislature which would outlaw all fireworks except for public displays.

Mrs. Hagen was unsuccessful in a similar attempt last year.

In other business at the legislature this morning, a replay by Labor Minister Leslie Pearson published in the votes and proceedings journal showed there was not a single charge laid from 1961 to 1964 under the provinces Fair Employment Practices Act.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, replying to a question by Liberal Leader Ray Perrault, revealed the daily cost of keeping one inmate in Chilliwack forest camp during the 1963-64 fiscal year was $6.07 and in Haney Correctional Institution it was $11.62.

Earlier he had revealed the per diem cost for inmates in Oakalla Prison Farm was $5.88.

Man Confesses To Ease His Conscience

A man with a conscience pleaded guilty in city court this morning to false pretences.

Kenneth Hodges, 23, of 291 Rosebank, will be sentenced Feb. 16. Crown prosecutor Peter Birkett said other possible charges against Hodges are being investigated.

Detective Walter Caldwell said Hodges gave himself up to police Saturday night "because he wanted to clear his conscience."

The detective said the accused bought a suit at a downtown department store and charged it up to a non-existent person.

Magistrate William Ostler said merchants who make it "that easy to open an account" are only tempting people.

80-Year-Old Man Hurt In Traffic

An 80-year-old man suffered hip injuries when he was in collision with a car Sunday night at Burdett and Cook.

Fred Beasley, 1024 McClure, is in fairly good condition today at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Police identified the driver of the car involved as Douglas Carr, 122 Menzies.

HMCS Fraser Passes Test In Big Dynamite 'Attack'

HMCS Fraser suffered no significant shipboard damage and no injuries to her crew, following a 500-ton TNT blast in the Hawaiian Islands late Saturday afternoon.

The Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort took part in the blast test with two U.S. ships, Atlanta, a decommissioned cruiser and USS Cochrane, a guided missile destroyer.

The blast was designed to test resistance of ships and their weapons systems to high-energy explosions. Blast site was Kahoolawe Island in the Hawaiian group.

The ships were placed at varying distances off the island. Residents about 10 miles away, on Maui Island, heard the thud of the explosion and saw white and black smoke and flame.

... so with heart in mouth and hand in pocket he cautiously passed on to the candy counter. What better to sweeten a beautiful girl? asks Lily Bowry. But just how sweet can a girl get when they're asking prices like that...

Health Board To Tackle Algae Threat

A pollution control policy for algae-infested Langford Lake and other fresh water bodies in Greater Victoria will be recommended to Metro Health Board Tuesday, chairman R. Gordon Lee said today.

Reeve Lee said the board would discuss possible steps that may be taken immediately to eliminate the infestation, which has included toxic waterbloom, a poisonous blue green algae blamed for the death of pet dogs last year.

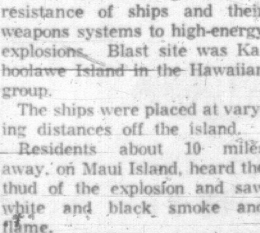

Meanwhile, University of Victoria biologist Dr. Allan Austin has set up a water sampling system to provide at least one full season of regular observation for laboratory study purposes.

Besides asking residents of Langford Lake to take bottled samples for him, Dr. Austin is compiling background information on lake conditions noted by himself recently and by residents during the past several years.

Soil and water tests of samples taken from adjoining agricultural land are being made concurrently in hopes of showing whether plant nutrients are supporting algae growth via drainage into the lake.

Dr. Austin said he hopes that within six months he will have a library of information on algae growth in fresh water lakes of North America.

His investigations here are being done on his own time out of interest, in the subject, which is a new area of study for Uvic.

And Then The Wind Blew In

Gale force winds hammered Victoria and Southern Vancouver Island Sunday night.

The blast completed the weather cycle for the area in the past five days.

Since last Wednesday there has been torrential rain, a trace of snow, frost and now winds.

They were still blowing today at between 30 and 44 miles-an-hour.

But they did not reach the 51-miles-an-hour peak recorded at 11 p.m. Sunday.

The gusts caused little damage but with the wind came the rain and 55 of an inch fell overnight.

Nanaimo Man Dies After Car Mishap

A 67-year-old Nanaimo man was knocked down and killed while crossing Nichol Street in the up-Island city Sunday night.

Gunwald Waage, 84 Robert Street, was with his wife at the time of the accident at 11 p.m.

He was rushed to Nanaimo General Hospital where he died shortly after.

Driver of the car was Stanley Gishorn, of Cedar, police reported.

No inquest date has been set.

Over the weekend there were five accidents in the up-Island city but no other serious injuries.

Purses Stolen From Host, Guest In Fairfield Home

A prowler entered a Fairfield home Sunday night while the owner was entertaining guests and stole two women's purses.

The theft took place at the home of L. J. Wallace, 1345 Fairfield. A purse belonging to Mrs. Wallace was taken. It contained $20.

The other purse, contained $60, was owned by Mrs. A. Leeming, 1210 May. The prowler entered the house by an unlocked door.

... after all it's the thought that counts. And no one can say he didn't think of buying a coat and candies. Anyway, unlike the wallet, love knows no bounds... and it was a nice card anyway. (Times photos by Bill Halkett.)

Mediator Sets Tuesday Meeting With Lumber Bureau, Inspectors

Mediator E. P. Fisher will try Tuesday to settle an industrial dispute which could have far-reaching consequences.

He said this morning both sides in the lumber inspectors dispute have agreed to a 10 a.m. meeting at labor department offices in Vancouver.

At the same time it was learned that:

• Representatives of unions which would be affected by a strike met this morning at the B.C. Federation of Labour office in Vancouver;

• Satisfactory wording of a job security clause would be acceptable to lumber inspectors.

FIRST MEETING

The meeting is the first since the inspectors, members of Local 1-288, International Woodworkers of America, rejected Mr. Fisher's recommendations for a settlement of the dispute.

Key clause in his report read: "The bureau undertakes for the term of the agreement that it will not licence the Pacific Lumber Inspection Bureau stamp to anyone presently utilizing the inspection service of the bureau, when the effect of such a contract would be to end the employment with the bureau of employed inspector."

Lumber inspectors rejected this "because there is no job security in the clause," said Rod Beaton, president of Local 1-288.

But he agreed it was worded satisfactorily it would be acceptable.

THE ISSUE

"We go along with the idea of job security," he said from his Vancouver home. "Job security is the issue."

The dispute arose because of a bureau proposal to lease the stamp, which designates the grade of processed lumber, to individual mills.

The inspectors say such a move will eliminate their jobs and lead to mills controlling the grade of lumber. The 276 inspectors throughout the province now have exclusive control of the stamp.

No decision has been made by the bureau on Mr. Fisher's recommendations and the matter now is "academic," said John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for forest industry companies.

At the B.C. Federation of Labour office, representatives from at least four unions that would be affected by a strike set for Feb. 16 held talks.

The unions were the IWA, the Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers and the National Association of Marine Engineers.

Although only 276 inspectors are involved, a strike would almost certainly result in millworkers refusing to cross picket lines.

This could affect as many as 20,000 men, 1,000 of them in Victoria.

Watches, Radios Stolen From Auction Rooms

Burglars who broke into Maynard's Auction Rooms, 733 Johnson, at the weekend got away with five radios and 48 watches.

City police said they also stole $30 from the cash register. Total value of the radios is placed at about $100 and there is no estimate of the value of the stolen timepieces.

Police said there was no sign of forced entry. The thieves left by a fire escape.

Civil Servants to Get $15 to $60 Increases

High, Low Ends Of Scale Favored

This year's salary increases for civil servants will range from a minimum $15 to a top $60 a month, Dr. H. M. Morrison, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, said today.

He said the $3.7 million sum for salary increases to some 18,000 government employees will average out at 5 per cent—the same as last year—but this time it will be weighted to favor the high and low ends of the salary scale.

Last year the boosts favored the high end of the scale.

The 1965 general raise, fourth in a row, will provide increases of about 9 per cent to those at both extremes of the scale and about 4 per cent to those in the middle.

COMPETITION

"None will receive less than $15 a month and the $60 monthly increases will be at the branch head level where we have to meet stiff competition for professional and administrative staff," said Dr. Morrison.

Sample figures for some classifications show: Laborers will get a 5.7 per cent boost on their old salary of $331 a month raising it to $350 a month; janitors will be raised 9 per cent, from $303 to $330 a month; beginning stenographers will receive from 6.8 to 5.8 per cent more, depending on where they fall in a six-step scale that used to range between $205 and $258 and now will range from $220 to $275.

INCREMENTS

Highest raises go to psychiatric aides who will get between 10 and 8.5 per cent depending on where they fall in a six-step scale that used to range between $270 and $330 a month and now will range between $297 and $358.

Dr. Morrison said the general raises will be further increased for a majority of employees who also will qualify for normal increments in their pay due to length of service.

The commission's jurisdiction does not cover deputy ministers and their assistants who are scheduled to receive higher raises as a separate group under the new budget.

HERE TODAY to assume post of McPherson Playhouse house manager, Danish-born Erik A. Perth, 30, will be in charge of civic theatre staff of up to 20 ushers, attendants and ticket sellers. Since 1960 Mr. Perth has been house manager of Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Vancouver. His duties will make him assistant to theatre-director Robert Ellison.

A 20-year-old youth will be sentenced Tuesday in Saanich court for hit-and-run driving. John Cannon, 1051 Hyacinth, pleaded guilty to running into the rear of another car as it turned off Lansdowne Road early Sunday morning.

The hit-and-run was found six hours later on Prospect Lake Road. Cannon admitted the offence after questioning. He said he drove off because he was scared. Cannon also pleaded guilty to being a minor without insurance.

Funeral Tuesday At Cathedral For Ex-Nurse

A funeral service will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in Christ Church Cathedral for Mrs. A. H. Gordon, 687 Falkland Road, who died Saturday.

Born in Winnipeg, Man., she moved to Victoria in 1921 and enrolled in the Royal Jubilee Hospital Nursing School.

She remained nursing in Victoria until she married in 1951. She was predeceased by her husband in 1963.

Survivors include: a brother, Archdeacon G. H. Dowker, of Bow Valley, Alta.; a sister, Mrs. A. E. Mallett, of Victoria. Dean Brian Whitlow will officiate at the service assisted by Rev. Cyril Venables.

Following cremation, the ashes will be placed in the family plot at St. Luke's Church at Cedar Hill.

Ask The Times

Q. What is the pay of Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Highways Minister Gagliardi? R. H. S.

A. Their present pay is scheduled to be increased at the present session. The old scale gave Premier Bennett a total of $23,000 and Mr. Gagliardi a total of $21,400, plus travelling expenses, which vary each year but are in the neighborhood of $4,500. This new scale will give the premier a total of $28,000, plus travel, and Mr. Gagliardi a total of $25,500, plus expenses.

Both receive their pay in two sums, as MLAs and as cabinet members and the following figures show the breakdown, with the proposed scale in parenthesis: As MLAs—sessional indemnity $5,000 ($6,500), living allowance $1,000 ($1,000), telephone allowance $400 ($500). As cabinet members—premier's salary $17,500 ($20,000); minister's salary $15,000 ($17,500).

Q. How deep is the deepest ocean? D. G.

A. Lowest depression in the world is seven miles under water off Mindanao in the Philippines.

Q. I would like to know how Houdini the magician came to his death? M. B.

A. Harry Houdini died in 1926 of peritonitis.

Improve Dull Hair The Scientific Way

By Penny Saver

Every time I see one of those beautiful blondes or redheads, and then take a look at my own nondescript "mop", I start thinking of changing my hair color. (The last time I tried that, I lost the set of instructions and ended up with a mixture of shades of red, brown and blonde.)

Now, I have found a trick to add highlights to what is an ordinarily dull color. And, it just takes five minutes!

How is this possible? The color rinse I found, priced at $3.25, doesn't change the original color of your hair. It just adds sparkle and highlights to your natural tone.

There are six highlighting colors to choose from, including autumn, for deep reddish glows, and black, to bring out the blue tints that look so attractive.

Not only does this color add beauty and glowing life to your hair, it also gives manageability, body and lustre to dull tresses. It hides revealing grey, too.

Do you ever have problems with oily skin—such as annoying and ugly pimples and blackheads? They look terrible and can cause acute embarrassment.

If your skin is naturally oily and you don't know how to combat the pimple problem, Penny has a suggestion.

Try this new skin medicator, selling at $1.25. The greaseless cream can be applied at the beginning of the day and invisibly it goes to work to stop blemishes where they start and to dry up the ones that have already begun.

The cream can be used instead of soap or right after a soap facial; to really clean out the pores where trouble starts.

Remember, Penny's number is 382-3131.

THE BETTER HALF

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Too Many Young People Simply Shun Exercise

I wish I were as young as my children are for several reasons. In the first place, I would have more years to live. Almost as exciting, I would be able to take advantage, at a very young age, of all that is now known about diet and exercise and health.

There is so much evidence on so many fronts that I believe I could be young at 100 if they had known all of the things they know now, sooner. I am going to try to make it anyway. It is frustrating for those of us who would like to have that chance to see the younger generation throw it away.

We know that many teen-agers are very poorly nourished and that the physical condition of college men and women is far from that to be desired. For instance, physical fitness tests have been given at Yale for many years. About 49 per cent failed in 1951 while 62 per cent failed in 1961. There is no reason to think that Yale is any different from other colleges. In the armed services about 40 per cent of the young men called to duty in recent years were turned down. What is true of young men is also true of young women.

A professor of education and director of graduate study in physical education told me that an informal survey of university students showed that eight out of 10 confine their exercise to walking to and from classes and running up and down steps. He added, "Their counterparts in colleges across the country are fellow travellers in this practice."

During a sabbatical leave a few years ago, he visited universities and colleges throughout the country. He visited with groups in snack bars, college lounges and wherever students gathered. He was so impressed with their enthusiasm, drive and dedication. They were intent on making a success in life. However, they seemed to feel that they had no time for exercise.

One young man who had just been elected student body president of a college said, "I don't believe in exercise. I'd rather have a soggy body than a soggy mind," indicating that it was one or the other. Many students seemed to feel that it was sophisticated to get only a few hours sleep at night, smoke two packs of cigarettes a day, and have a candy bar and soft drink for lunch.

The professor said, "College life today is a trying ordeal with strenuous routines, a constant barrage of tests, stringent admission requirements, fast academic pace, large doses of homework, and keen competition for honors. I'm sure you will agree that to be successful in this higher educational experience you must be fit. Sickness, lack of stamina for a full day's work, and physical ailments that detract from mental effort will prove to be a drag on the student and could result in college failure."

DEAR ABBY...

What's Your Guess?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I recently met an attractive young woman at one of those cocktail parties where there were about 100 people milling around. She just wandered over and started talking to me. When I realized from her conversation that she was more than casually interested in me, I thought I had better set her straight, and I told her that I was married. She asked, "happily?" That, in my opinion, was an extremely personal question for one stranger to ask another. What do you think that young woman had in mind?

STRANGER IN UNIFORM. DEAR ABBY: Some enchanted evening.

DEAR ABBY: Before my birthday, an aunt of mine told me my mother she was giving me money this year. She sent a money folder, the kind with a hole in it so you can see the picture on the bill. When I opened it, there was nothing inside. Now my mother says I have to write and thank my aunt for the "money." I say it's bad enough to get gypped without having to struggle through a thank-you note for money I never got. I think she should tell my aunt what happened, but she won't. The same thing happened to me two years ago when I graduated from the eighth grade. Another absent-minded relative sent me an empty folder and I had to thank him for it. If I am going through life getting empty envelopes, I want to know how to handle it. Mother reads your column, so please set her straight.

GYPPED.

DEAR GYPPED: Notify the giver that the money folder was empty when you received it. The mail could have been tampered with and the money removed. Whether it's a theft or absent-mindedness on the part of the person sending the gift, the latter would appreciate being told.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 years old. The other night when I was baby-sitting my boy friend and his friend came over there about 8 o'clock. I didn't know they were coming. They live quite a ways from me so I let them in. The kids were still up so I let them sit right in the living room with us all the time the boys were there. We didn't do anything wrong. Well, today, Mrs. called me up and asked if I had any company. I didn't want to lie so I said yes. Then she said she didn't want me to baby-sit for her any more. This is the first time I ever did anything like that and I am scared stiff my mother will find out. If she does, I'll get it and she'll never trust me again. Should I tell my mother? Or should I try to forget about it?

SCARED.

DEAR SCARED: Tell your mother. And if you ever baby-sit again, never let anyone visit you unless you have the approval of both the woman by whom you were hired and your mother.

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the woman who refused to let her husband go hunting because she thought it was "inhuman." Far more deer die of starvation than ever meet a hunter's bullet. Furthermore, fees from hunting licenses have meant the preservation of many species. I hope you will see fit to publish this in defence of hunters whom some people think of as thrill-seeking savages.

A HUNTER.

Sims, West Vancouver, the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of ivory peau de soie enhanced with re-embroidered Alencon lace at the yoke and waistline. Similar lace appliques accented the slim skirt that was highlighted with a full overskirt that extended into a train. The illusion net veil misted to chapel-length from a cluster of peau de soie roses and leaves. She carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of white rosebuds, hyacinths and ivy.

Secretary Quotes Figures Allocated To Educational Work of IODE Chapter

The sum of $189.84 was spent on education for municipal and national burials during the past year by the Camosun Chapter, IODE. This was the figure given by educational secretary, Mrs. A. Anderson in her report, presented at the annual luncheon meeting held Friday afternoon in the T. Eaton Company board room.

The usual contribution of books, reported Mrs. Anderson, had not been sent to the group's adopted school in Kipish, B.C., due to the changes in the teaching staff. However, she announced that the chapter had given magazines, to the amount of $7.34 to the Pine Point School.

STUDENT HELPED

The chapter's bursary, which was increased to $100 this year, was awarded to Miss Carolyn Zapf, a student at S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School. Donations were also given to the following funds: Dulcie Fowler Memorial Fund, $50; Centennial Fund, $12.50; University Scholarship fund, $10; and Municipal fund, $50.

Six hampers, valued at $65, and food and clothing, to the amount of $220.43, were distributed to needy families.

Umbrellas Featured In Paris Shows

PARIS (Reuters)—Umbrellas designed especially for the smartest evening occasions are a feature of present Paris fashion trends. They are inspired by the movie My Fair Lady.

The French Umbrella Federation has set out to prove that this utilitarian accessory is no longer the cinderella of a well co-ordinated wardrobe. The newest umbrellas are as formal as a man's white tie, and as festive as a carnival costume.

Covered with waterproof satin or brocade, and lined with pleated chiffon or Beauvais embroidery, they have long stately handles—made of rare woods, chiselled metal, tortoise shell, fur or jewels.

One evening model comes up with a slender shaft of black ebony, topped with a silver head twined with ivy leaves worked in relief. Other copies of antique handles are solidly paved with multi-colored jewels, or studded with pearls and rhinestones.

FINDS IT SHOCKING

Pierre Cardin, one of the most avant-garde of the Paris top dress designers, insists it is shocking to see "just any old umbrella" carried with formal clothes.

"When a woman is going to the opera or a ball, she should not dream of wearing sports shoes with her evening gown. She carries a fragile satin or jewelled handbag, and wears long white kid gloves."

Why then, argues Cardin, do women consider that one umbrella is suitable for every occasion?

The wrong umbrella is a false note in the harmony of the costume, he says.

The handles of Cardin's new umbrellas stress the beauty of natural woods, polished to the lustre of marble.

Lace appliques enhanced the floor-length sheath-style gown of tulle worn by the bride. An added feature was the overskirt that extended in train from beneath two satin bows at back waistline. Sleeves ended in lily points. A headpiece of three French roses held the four-tier chapel-length veil of tulle. She was given in marriage by her father.

Identical gowns of teal blue peau de soie overskirted with lace were the choice of matron of honor, Mrs. M. Sharp, bridesmaid, Miss Mary Van Shaik, and junior bridesmaid, Miss Sharon Turner.

Karen Shipley was flower girl in a teal blue peau de soie frock accented with a white overskirt.

They complemented their gowns with floral headbands and carried corsages of pink and white carnations. The only jewelry was gold brooches, gifts of the bride.

Ron Henning was best man and ushering guests to their pews were George Shipley and Richard Chudley.

Miss Debbie Turner was in charge of the bride's book at a reception that followed in the Ingraham Hotel.

Guest tables were decorated on a pink and white theme and the head table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake made by the mother of the bride. Baskets of pink and white gladioli completed the decorations.

Frank Sim proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to San Diego, Calif., the bride donned a winter white suit with matching hat and black accessories. Her jewelry was a black diamond necklace and earrings, gift of the groom. Red roses formed her corsage.

On return, the couple will make their home in Victoria.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Joan Maxwell, age nine, of Imperial Beach, Calif., for her question:

What makes a flying fish jump? and vibrate like the wings of a zooming dragonfly.

Most of their trips above the water are made because the flying fishes are afraid. Danger lurks below in the water, and the little fliers take to the air to escape. The different kinds of flying fish like to live in the warm oceans of the world, and they share these seas with many hungry monsters. The playful porpoise eats flying fish and so does the greedy shark.

The flying fishes know when the water enemies are moving nearby through the water. This is when they wriggle their strong tails to get up speed, leap up from the water and make their swift flights into the air. The porpoise is a smart animal and often he expects the dainty creatures to take flight. He follows their shadows that fall on the surface of the water and manages to be there with his mouth open when they flop back into the sea.

Flies on Windy Days

When you watch the flying fish above the waves off Southern California there may be porpoises or sharks nearby. Flocks of the pretty creatures often fly around boats because they mistake a moving boat for a prowling enemy. Sometimes a flying fish takes a flight to escape a shark and forgets that he has other enemies in the air. He may escape the shark, only to be eaten by a hungry seagull.

As a rule a flying fish takes to the air because he is scared of his hungry foes in the water. But the big gullard is a spiky flying fish with few enemies who want to eat him. He flies for fun, and we suspect that other flying fishes also make some of their trips into the air just for fun.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

WHAT ELSE IS NEW Italian actor Raf Vallone has just been set to play the role of Jean Harlow's stepfather—Marino Bello—in the film version of "Harlow." It will be Vallone's first Hollywood film. Broadwayites were aghast at one of the closest calls they'd ever seen. Former heavyweight champ Rocky Marciano narrowly missed being struck by a speeding car at 54th Street and 7th Avenue, in front of the Stage Delicatessen. Probably the only thing that saved him was his agile footwork in slippery, snowy conditions with poor visibility. But Rocky's quick reflexes were a sight to behold. Dan Dailey received a standing ovation from the cast of "Catch Me if You Can," when he started his rehearsals at the Bohemian Hall, Dan, returning to Broadway after 26 years, was touched almost to tears.

Ed Luckenbach, president of the famous steamship line, may make headlines by suing a downtown firm for $12 million. The details of the case will be shockers if it gets to court. Singer Mary Small is at Flower 5th Avenue Hospital for major surgery. Californians expect fire works when the Jane Wyman-Fred Karger divorce suit goes before the bench. They predict she'll contest it, violently. Composer Darius Milhaud has been undergoing great troubles lately because he's suffering from rheumatism of the fingers.

Movie fans would be shocked to learn about a dignified British actor who, when in Gotham, visits the wild parties tossed regularly by a 'way-out beatnik girl in Greenwich Village. (No, not Rexy, of course.) You can bet that the title song from "Hush" Hush, Sweet Charlotte won't be on the hit parade with "Hello Dolly" writer Jerry Herman. The lyrics to "Charlotte" were written by Mack David, who is using Herman over the "Hello Dolly" tune.

The U.S. department of labor's crackdown on issuing work permits to foreign entertainers (pretty silly since President Johnson has come out for letting more and more of "the huddled masses" into the United States) has the producers of some teen-age appeal video shows really worried. But one smart British combo, Freddie and the Dreamers, got around the edict by pretending to satirize Rock 'n' Roll groups. Then a terrible thing happened to them on the way to success; the teen-agers have been taking them seriously and buying their "gag" records as if they were regular pop hits.

Jonathan Winters, who just finished "The Loved One" for Marty Ransohoff, is wanted by Seven Arts for the flick version of "Oh Dad, Poor Dad." The Modern Jazz Quartet signed for its eighth European tour, starting this summer. They've bagged every major jazz award on the Continent since their first trans-Atlantic junket in 1956.

CAR BAN FOR YOUTHS?

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP)—Seventeen-year-olds and under would be banned from owning cars under a bill introduced in the Washington house Saturday. It would not apply to members of the armed forces. At present juveniles can get driver's licences at the age of 16 and buy a car when they have the money. The new bill would not allow those under 17 to purchase a car of their own.

Ombudsman Discussed In London

LONDON (CP)—A one-day conference on the ombudsman system was held here Saturday under the sponsorship of Britain's society for individual freedom.

The system, already at work in the Scandinavian countries and New Zealand, involves one or more investigators—called ombudsmen—appointed independently to consider or act on grievances brought by individuals against government departments.

Chairing one of the discussion groups at the conference was former chief justice James McRuer of Ontario, now conducting a one-man royal commission on civil rights in Ontario.

"I found the talks extremely useful," he told a reporter. "I shall give my opinions on the ombudsman system and how it might work in Canada when I submit my report to the government. I wouldn't like to make any comment now. I'm here to listen."

'Get Out' Kosygin Tells U.S.

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin today demanded the withdrawal of U.S. forces and arms from South Viet Nam and "an end to armed provocations" against Communist North Viet Nam.

The official Soviet news agency Tass quoted Kosygin as saying in Hanoi that "as long as the imperialists threaten the peoples, it is our international duty to strengthen the might and defensive capacity of the socialist commonwealth of nations, to close our ranks and give assistance to the oppressed and fighting peoples."

But Kosygin, as reported by Tass, made no mention of his earlier pledge of Soviet arms to Communist North Viet Nam in the event of an American attack.

That promise was made Sunday only a few hours before the U.S. announcement of retaliatory air attacks on military targets inside North Viet Nam.

RUINS OF HELICOPTER destroyed by Viet Cong mortar attack on U.S. base in South Viet Nam are inspected Sunday by U.S. Army officers. Seven

Americans were killed and 100 injured, touching off retaliatory air raid by U.S. and South Viet Nam planes on North Viet Nam bases.

Join Sorties Across Border

DA NANG (AP)—U.S. and South Vietnamese planes today struck at Communist North Viet Nam for the second day, hitting military camps and leaving them burning, the South Vietnamese air commander reported.

Brig-Gen. Nguyen Cao-Ky, flying the lead Vietnamese plane, was hit in the arm by shrapnel. He said anti-aircraft fire was heavy over the target areas.

Ky reported later the raid was made by 30 South Vietnamese propeller-driven A1E Skyraiders and four U.S. F-100s.

In Saigon, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the armed forces commander, said the raid had destroyed 70 per cent of the targets hit.

Ky identified the villages as Liem Cong Tay, That Le and Song Song, all near the frontier and along a route leading toward the border.

Ky said the four U.S. F-100s bombed an area just to the north of his target region, with excellent results.

force plane was hit by anti-aircraft fire over the target and crashed near Da Nang on its return flight. The pilot parachuted and suffered a bruised shoulder. A second Vietnamese pilot was wounded by shrapnel in the neck but not seriously.

Ky said he understood one U.S. plane was hit by anti-aircraft fire but that there were no casualties among American personnel.

The new attack was first announced by the U.S. embassy in Saigon.

But that announcement gave no details.

It followed a series of emergency meetings in Saigon. U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor met hurriedly with acting prime minister Nguyen Xuan Oanh after an emergency cabinet meeting.

Tory Rebel Demands Look At Vote Count

OTTAWA (CP)—John Diefenbaker survived a weekend bid by Progressive Conservative dissidents to force a national leadership convention, but was under pressure today to permit a scrutiny of the executive's secret poll on the issue.

JOHN D.

'Can't Go On Forever'

By VICTOR MACKIE
(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—John Diefenbaker, once again has beaten down a revolt within the Conservative party against his leadership, but his party critics today were taking heart from his declaration that he has no intention of hanging on indefinitely.

During a tough, fighting speech at the national executive meeting Saturday that aroused the ire of his opponents, he indicated that the day was not too far distant when he would be voluntarily stepping down—but not yet.

Delegates recalled the approximate words "The Chief" had used in referring to his eventual retirement were: "I am not going on forever, so if the bright young men who aspire to the leadership will restrain their impatience a little longer."

Then having given some encouragement to would-be Conservative leaders, Mr. Diefenbaker could not refrain from impishly adding that more than one outstanding British political leader had carried on actively well into their seventies and even a few into their eighties. Mr. Diefenbaker will be 70 years of age in September.

The Tory leader in the Conservative parliamentary caucus Friday made a similar reference to the day being not too distant when he would seriously consider laying down the burden of leadership.

Consequently, those who were beginning to worry that "the chief" might never think of retirement, were now coming around to the view that he has no intention of clinging to office until his years run out.

As a result, both sides in the party dispute, those for Mr. Diefenbaker and those opposed to his continuing as leader were extracting some degree of consolation from the weekend meeting.

Quebec leader Leon Balcer, who wants the 68-year-old Opposition leader replaced, said Sunday a decision to reject the convention was "in conflict with the general trend" of Saturday's executive meeting at which Mr. Diefenbaker faced his most concerted opposition since he was elected leader in 1956.

"I trust Mr. Diefenbaker will have no objection to the examination of the complete figures and the voting slips on which they are based," Mr. Balcer said.

He made the statement after party president Dalton K. Camp, in a brief press release from party headquarters, said: "As a result of the advice sought from the national executive of the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada at yesterday's (Saturday's) meeting, the proposal that a national leadership convention be called has been rejected."

Informants said the questionnaires, filled out by the 116 members of the executive who were present, were analysed by three men—Mr. Camp, national secretary Kenneth Binks, and national director Richard Thrasher.

BIG MAJORITY NEEDED

Mr. Camp had told reporters Saturday that in his view a substantial majority in favor of a convention would be required to warrant calling one, and that the results would not be announced.

Mr. Balcer did not elaborate on his statement, but informants said the secrecy surrounding the results indicated a growing demand within the party for a leadership convention.

One high party authority estimated that fewer than five votes separated those who opposed a convention and those who favored one.

Some estimates of the result appeared based on a standing vote at the closed meeting on whether the executive should express confidence or no-confidence in Mr. Diefenbaker.

Informants said a question proposed by the principal officers on whether delegates favored or opposed asking Mr. Diefenbaker to resign was rejected by a 55 to 53 vote.

It was understood that British Columbia Conservative leader

Dave Fulton stood up in favor of asking the question, and Nova Scotia Premier Robert Stanfield lined up behind Diefenbaker.

After Mr. Diefenbaker and others objected to including the

U.K. Labor MP Calls for Talks

LONDON (AP)—A Labor member of the House of Commons urged Britain Sunday to take the lead in calling a peace conference "to prevent the war in Viet Nam from spreading until it involves us all."

William N. Warbey, who recently talked with North Vietnamese chief Ho Chi Minh in Hanoi, said he found the Communist regime's proposals for a settlement "very reasonable, provided that the Americans now recognize that they would have to sit round a conference table with all the countries which participated in the 1954 Geneva conference."

He said it was time that Britain, as co-chairman of the U.S.S.R. of the 1954 Geneva conference which ended the French-Indochina war, convened the 14 participants again.

Warning Issued By Red Chinese

TOIYO (UPI)—Communist China said today it will not stand idly by while "U.S. imperialists" extend the war in South Viet Nam to North Viet Nam.

The warning came in a statement by Gen. Lo Jui-Ching, vice-premier and chief of the general staff of the Chinese army.

His statement was transmitted by the official New China news agency.

"We will do our utmost to support the Vietnamese peoples' struggle against U.S. imperialist aggression," Lo said.

"Should U.S. imperialism act in disregard of others' views and dare to impose aggressive war upon us, we are prepared, and we know how to deal with their aggression."

FED UP, mystery millionaire Harry Stonehill of Vancouver announced Sunday he was leaving Canada today for New York. Mr. Stonehill said action was sparked by a threatening telephone call to him at his home. He was supposed to leave Canada, under an order by the immigration department, Jan. 9. (See story Page 3.)

CN Yard Crews Back Strike on PGE Line

VANCOUVER (CP)—A strike of 183 men on the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway had a spreading effect today as Canadian National Railway switch yard crews failed to report for work and the PGE said it planned to lease out a number of its diesel units.

The government-owned PGE did not say to what line 35 of its 42 diesel units would be leased. CNR and Canadian Pacific Railway officials said their lines were not involved.

As the PGE remained strike-bound except for emergency services in isolated areas and 1,400 of its non-striking workers laid off because of what the railway said were threats, the CNR reported some of its switch yard men were not reporting.

A total of 86 men and yard foremen and two CNR yardmasters said Sunday they would not be reporting. A CNR spokesman said, however, that yard duties are being carried on as much as possible by supervisory and other personnel.

The action by the CNR switch crews, affecting switch yards on the Vancouver waterfront, the

BRITAIN BANS CIGARETTE ADS ON TELEVISION

LONDON (UPI)—The Labour government today banned cigarette advertising on British television.

Health Minister Kenneth Robinson told the House of Commons that Independent Television (ITV), Britain's only commercial television channel, had been told to put the ban into effect "as soon as possible."

Robinson said the government banned cigarette advertising because "the number of deaths from lung cancer in Great Britain continues to increase."

Crew Abandons Freighter

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The 23-man crew of the leaking Greek freighter Grammatiki abandoned ship in the stormy north Pacific today but two other vessels quickly began rescue operations.

The Grammatiki was en route from Vancouver to Formosa. The 17th U.S. Coast Guard district here said the freighter Cotton State and the motor vessel Roland started picking up the Grammatiki's crew about 45 minutes after lifeboats were put overboard.

Word of the rescue was radioed here from a long-range coast guard plane C-130 from Barber's Point, Hawaii, which was circling over the scene.

Canadian Westinghouse announced earnings in 1964 were $5.62 a share compared with $4.16 the previous year. The firm also had higher sales and increased its annual dividend payout to $1.60 a share compared with 60 cents in 1963.

Net Profit Jumps 40%

On a comparative basis, net earnings showed an increase of 10.8 per cent. However, a profit on the sale of an investment in 1963, for which there was no comparable figure in 1964, reduced the improvement to 3.9 per cent.

During the year, Southam acquired all the remaining shares of Murray Holdings Ltd. in which it had held a 23-per-cent interest for many years. Cost of the acquisition was $1,564,000.

REGISTERED RETIREMENT SAVINGS PLAN

Save money for retirement tax free

In our opinion compulsory contributions to the proposed Canada Plan or pension plans set up by any of the provinces will leave ample room for additional tax free savings, before reaching the maximum, for many employed or self-employed Canadians.

A plan embracing a built-in hedge against inflation which we would recommend has many advantages compared to one dependent on fixed interest.

You must act NOW for such a plan to be applicable to your 1964 income. The Savings Plan must be registered before February 28, 1965.

We can offer you worthwhile advice as to how you should make income tax savings enhance your retirement plans. Our managers and staff are available for consultation at any of our offices. We suggest you discuss your ideas with them.

Arthur Mayse

Disenchantment is a regrettable but necessary part of education, and we learn from experience that all is rarely as it seems.

I offer this quacking platitude as window-dressing for one of the profound disillusionments that overtook our household in the years before Ron was borrowing my socks, and daughter Sue had sprouted half an inch taller than her mother.

One day back then, we got a letter three times re-directed, in a stained and tattered envelope which someone along its route had obligingly patched. The envelope, flaunting an Alaska postmark, arrived on a Saturday when the children were home. They speculated about it while we dealt with the usual batch of soap come-alongs, notices of meetings and bills.

Alaska is practically next door, but the kids fussed over that letter as if it had come from somewhere below the equator.

Who did we know in Alaska, they demanded. Were there relatives up north they'd never heard of?

"No," I told them, "not even a 42nd cousin."

I tore the end off the envelope, unfolded the letter and recovered some snapshots which had tumbled out.

Meanwhile, Ron had peeked at the signature.

"We do have relatives in Alaska," he announced. "It's from Cousin Ollie!"

And so it was, to Win's and my befuddlement. But the letter made all clear.

In two sheets that fairly reeked of the wild and heavy northland, the writer let it be known that he had, in a fit of whimsy, adopted me as an honorary cousin after reading five parts of a wilderness-background serial I'd once written.

"Had to wait for spring break-up to get the sixth," he explained; and added that he meant to stop by for a visit on his way to the Outside.

The date he'd set was less than a week distant.

Anticipation mounted as the days passed. Any number of times, Sue and Ron studied the snaps that accompanied the letter. In one, Cousin Ollie stood on snowshoes outside his trapper's cabin by a river with an unpronounceable name. Another showed him squatting in a canoe, his grin framed in a parka's trim hood.

The morning of Cousin Ollie's visit arrived, then the afternoon. The kids waited at the top of the drive; they'd decided it wasn't really likely he'd bring all his huskies with him, just his faithful lead dog he'd written us about.

About five o'clock, a cab turned into the drive. Ron and Sue ran down. Win and I went outside to greet the awaited guests.

Spry out of the cab hopped a greying little man in a blue suit and a hat which was a ringer for the fedora I wear once or maybe twice a year.

There were no huskies, not even the faithful dogteam leader. Only Cousin Ollie, in his dagger blue suit, with beaming smile and brisk hand-shake.

"Have a good season?" I asked him when we were settled indoors.

"Good season?" Cousin Ollie repeated, obviously puzzled.

"On a rainy day," I said, and drew a chuckle.

"I haven't trapped for years," Cousin Ollie said, while the faces of our young lost their glow, and romance flew out the window. "I'm in the plumbing business now."

Through dinner and a long evening, we listened, not to tales of outdoor adventure amid the rigors of the Alaskan wilds, but to a thorough breakdown of the plumbing business in Fairbanks, or perhaps it was Anchorage.

In any case, except for more burst pipes, it might have been Victoria, and Sue and Ron took themselves quietly off to bed, well before their usual time.

And ever since, when some attractive but unproved proposition comes our way, we wait on conviction before unleashing our hopes.

It could be another Cousin Ollie!

P-f-f-t Law Again Sought By Legislator

Mrs. Lois Hagen (NDP—Grand Forks-Greenwood)—will try again this session to ban fireworks in the province.

She has posted notice of intent to introduce a private bill to the legislature which would outlaw all fireworks except for public displays.

Mrs. Hagen was unsuccessful in a similar attempt last year.

In other business at the legislature this morning, a replay by Labor Minister Leslie Pearson published in the votes and proceedings journal showed there was not a single charge laid from 1961 to 1964 under the provinces Fair Employment Practices Act.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner, replying to a question by Liberal Leader Ray Perrault, revealed the daily cost of keeping one inmate in Chilliwack forest camp during the 1963-64 fiscal year was $6.07 and in Hancor Correctional Institution it was $11.62.

Earlier he had revealed the per diem cost for inmates in Oakalla Prison Farm was $5.88.

Man Confesses To Ease His Conscience

A man with a conscience pleaded guilty in city court this morning to false pretences.

Kenneth Hodges, 23, of 291 Rosebank, will be sentenced Feb. 16. Crown prosecutor Peter Birkett said other possible charges against Hodges are being investigated.

Detective Walter Caldwell said Hodges gave himself up to police Saturday night "because he wanted to clear his conscience."

The detective said the accused bought a suit at a downtown department store and charged it up to a non-existent person.

Magistrate William Ostler said merchants who make it "that easy to open an account" are only tempting people.

HMCS Fraser Passes Test In Big Dynamite 'Attack'

HMCS Fraser suffered no significant shipboard damage and no injuries to her crew, following a 500-ton TNT blast in the Hawaiian Islands late Saturday afternoon.

The Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort took part in the blast test with two U.S. ships, Atlanta, a decommissioned cruiser and USS Cochrane, a guided missile destroyer.

The blast was designed to test resistance of ships and their weapons systems to high-energy explosions. Blast site was Kahoolawe Island in the Hawaiian group.

The ships were placed at varying distances off the island. Residents about 10 miles away, on Maui Island, heard the thud of the explosion and saw white and black smoke and flame.

And Then The Wind Blew In

Gale force winds hammered Victoria and Southern Vancouver Island Sunday night.

The blast completed the weather cycle for the area in the past five days.

Since last Wednesday there has been torrential rain, a trace of snow, frost and now winds.

They were still blowing today at between 30 and 44 miles-an-hour.

But they did not reach the 51-miles-an-hour peak recorded at 11 p.m. Sunday.

The gusts caused little damage but with the wind came the rain and .55 fell overnight.

Health Board To Tackle Algae Threat

A pollution control policy for algae-infested Langford Lake and other fresh water bodies in Greater Victoria will be recommended to Metro Health board Tuesday, chairman R. Gordon Lee said today.

Reeve Lee said the board would discuss possible steps that may be taken immediately to eliminate the infestation, which has included toxic waterbloom, a poisonous blue green algae blamed for the death of pet dogs last year.

Meanwhile, University of Victoria biologist Dr. Allan Austin has set up a water sampling system "to provide at least one full season of regular observation for laboratory study purposes."

Besides asking residents of Langford Lake to take bottled samples for him, Dr. Austin is compiling background information on lake conditions noted by himself recently and by residents during the past several years.

Soil and water tests of samples taken from adjoining agricultural land are being made concurrently in hopes of showing whether plant nutrients are supporting algae growth via drainage into the lake.

Dr. Austin said he hopes that within six months he will have a library of information on algae growth in fresh water lakes of North America.

His investigations here are being done on his own time out of interest in the subject, which is a new area of study for Uvic.

...after all it's the thought that counts. And no one can say he didn't think of buying a coat and candies. Anyway, unlike the wallet, love knows no bounds... and it was a nice card anyway. (Times photos by Bill Halkett.)

Mediator Sets Tuesday Meeting With Lumber Bureau, Inspectors

Mediator E. P. Fisher will try Tuesday to settle an industrial dispute which could have far-reaching consequences.

He said this morning both sides in the lumber inspectors dispute have agreed to a 10 a.m. meeting at labor department offices in Vancouver.

At the same time it was learned that:

● Representatives of unions which would be affected by a strike met this morning at the B.C. Federation of Labor office in Vancouver;

● Satisfactory wording of a job security clause would be acceptable to lumber inspectors.

The meeting is the first since the inspectors, members of Local 1-288, International Woodworkers of America, rejected Mr. Fisher's recommendations for a settlement of the dispute.

Key clause in his report read: "The bureau undertakes for the term of the agreement that it will not license the Pacific Lumber Inspection Bureau stamp to anyone presently utilizing the inspection service of the bureau, when the effect of such a contract would be to end the employment with the bureau of employed inspectors."

Lumber inspectors rejected this "because there is no job security in the clause," said Rod Beaton, president of Local 1-288.

But he agreed if it was worded satisfactorily it would be acceptable.

No decision has been made by the bureau on Mr. Fisher's recommendations and the matter now is "academic," said John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for forest industry companies.

At the B.C. Federation of Labor office, representatives from at least four unions that would be affected by a strike set for Feb. 16 held talks.

The unions were the IWA, the Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers and the National Association of Marine Engineers.

Although only 276 inspectors are involved, a strike would almost certainly result in millworkers refusing to cross picket lines.

This could affect as many as 20,000 men, 1,000 of them in Victoria.

The theft took place at the home of L. J. Wallace, 1345 Fairfield. A purse belonging to Mrs. Wallace was taken. It contained $20.

The other purse, contained $60, was owned by Mrs. A. Leeming, 1210 May. The prowler entered the house by an unlocked door.

High, Low Ends Of Scale Favored

This year's salary increases for civil servants will range from a minimum $15 to a top $60 a month, Dr. H. M. Morrison, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, said today.

He said the $3.7 million sum for salary increases to some 18,000 government employees will average out at 5 per cent—the same as last year—but this time it will be weighted to favor the high and low ends of the salary scale.

Last year the boosts favored the high end of the scale.

The 1965 general raise, fourth in a row, will provide increases of about 9 per cent to those at both extremes of the scale and about 4 per cent to those in the middle.

Sample figures for some classifications show: Laborers will get a 5.7 per cent boost on their old salary of $331 a month raising it to $350 a month; janitors will be raised 9 per cent, from $303 to $330 a month; beginning stenographers will receive from 6.8 to 5.8 per cent more, depending on where they fall in a six-step scale that used to range between $205 and $258 and now will range from $220 to $273.

Highest raises go to psychiatric aides who will get between 10 and 8.5 per cent depending on where they fall in a six-step scale, that used to range between $270 and $330 a month and now will range between $297 and $358.

Dr. Morrison said the general raises will be further increased for a majority of employees who also will qualify for normal increments in their pay due to length of service.

The commission's jurisdiction does not cover deputy ministers and their assistants who are scheduled to receive higher raises as a separate group under the new budget.

St. Alban's 50-Up Club will meet in the parish hall, 1468 Ryan, Thursday at 2 p.m.

Next meeting of the Prospect Lake Community District Association will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the community hall.

Frederick Doherty, 3925 Glenford, pleaded guilty to impaired driving when he appeared in Saanich court this morning.

He was charged after he drove his pickup truck off Admirals Road early Sunday morning. Police said he was almost incoherent when questioned and told them he had drunk 10 beers.

He was remanded to Feb. 16 for sentence after asking for his licence for business purposes.

The event closed Saturday evening.

Ceremonies Saturday in HMC Dockyard recreation hall will honor 125 safe motor transport drivers of the RCN's Pacific Command.

The drivers will get lapel pins designating the number of accident-free years they have driven.

Six top drivers are William Baxter, 218 Crease; Jack Foyer, 3935 Holland; Edward Hutcheson, 308 Ker; Rudolph Kroening, 850 Admirals; Frank A. Parker, 812 Russell and Spencer B. Rowse, 4618 Douglas.

A 20-year-old youth will be sentenced Tuesday in Saanich court for hit-and-run driving.

John Cannon, 1051 Hyacinth, pleaded guilty to running into the rear of another car as it turned off Lansdowne Road early Sunday morning.

The hit-run car was found six hours later on Prospect Lake Road. Cannon admitted the offence after questioning. He said he drove off because he was scared. Cannon also pleaded guilty to being a minor without insurance.

Born in Winnipeg, Man., she moved to Victoria in 1921 and enrolled in the Royal Jubilee Hospital Nursing School.

Tory Rebel Demands Look At Vote Count

OTTAWA (CP)—John Diefenbaker survived a weekend bid by Progressive Conservative dissidents to force a national leadership convention, but was under pressure today to permit a scrutiny of the executive's secret poll on the issue.

JOHN D.

'Can't Go On Forever'

By VICTOR MACKIE
(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—John Diefenbaker, once again has beaten down a revolt within the Conservative party against his leadership, but his party critics today were taking heart from his declaration that he has no intention of hanging on indefinitely.

During a tough, fighting speech at the national executive meeting Saturday that aroused the ire of his opponents, he indicated that the day was not too far distant when he would be voluntarily stepping down—but not yet.

Delegates recalled the approximate words "The Chief" had used in referring to his eventual retirement were: "I am not going on forever, so if the bright young men who aspire to the leadership will restrain their impatience a little longer."

Then having given some encouragement to would-be Conservative leaders, Mr. Diefenbaker could not refrain from implicitly adding that more than one outstanding British political leader had carried on actively well into their seventies and even a few into their eighties. Mr. Diefenbaker will be 70 years of age in September.

The Tory leader in the Conservative parliamentary caucus Friday made a similar reference to the day being not too distant when he would seriously consider laying down the burden of leadership.

Consequently, those who were beginning to worry that "the chief" might never think of retirement, were now coming around to the view that he has no intention of clinging to office until his years run out.

As a result, both sides in the party dispute, those for Mr. Diefenbaker and those opposed to his continuing as leader were extracting some degree of consolation from the weekend meeting.

Quebec leader Leon Balcer, who wants the 69-year-old Opposition leader replaced, said Sunday a decision to reject the convention was "in conflict with the general trend" of Saturday's executive meeting at which Mr. Diefenbaker faced his most concerted opposition since he was elected leader in 1956.

"I trust Mr. Diefenbaker will have no objection to the examination of the complete figures and the voting slips on which they are based," Mr. Balcer said.

He made the statement after party president Dalton T. Camp, in a brief press release from party headquarters, said: "As a result of the advice sought from the national executive of the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada at yesterday's (Saturday's) meeting, the proposal that the body recommend that a national leadership convention be called has been rejected."

Informants said the questionnaires, filled out by the 116 members of the executive who were present, were analysed by three men—Mr. Camp, national secretary Kenneth Binks and national director Richard Thrasher.

BIG MAJORITY NEEDED
Mr. Camp had told reporters Saturday that in his view a substantial majority in favor of a convention would be required to warrant calling one, and that the results would not be announced.

Mr. Balcer did not elaborate on his statement, but informants said the secrecy surrounding the results indicated a growing demand within the party for a leadership convention.

One high party authority estimated that fewer than five votes separated those who opposed a convention and those who favored one.

Some estimates of the result appeared based on a standing vote at the closed meeting on whether the executive should express confidence or no-confidence in Mr. Diefenbaker.

Informants said a question proposed by the principal officers on whether delegates favored or opposed asking Mr. Diefenbaker to resign was rejected by a 55 to 53 vote.

It was understood that British Columbia Conservative leader Davie Fulton stood up in favor of asking the question, and Nova Scotia Premier Robert Stanfield lined up behind Diefenbaker.

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet government declared tonight it will be forced to take "further measures" to protect North Vietnamese security following the American reprisal bombing raids.

The warning was contained in an official government statement issued after Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin demanded "an end to armed provocations" by the United States against North Viet Nam. Kosygin, who is visiting Hanoi, also demanded that U.S. troops get out of South Viet Nam.

"The Soviet Union will be forced, together with its allies and friends, to take further measures to safeguard the security and to strengthen the defense capability of the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam," tonight's government statement said.

The Soviet statement, transmitted by the official Tass news agency, added: "No one should doubt that the Soviet Union will do this, that the Soviet people will fulfill its international duty to the fraternal socialist country."

The Kremlin declared that there "is not a single grain of truth" in the American position that the raids were reprisals for Viet Cong raids on American military installations in South Viet Nam.

"This is nothing else but a dodge with the aim of camouflaging the predatory policy of the United States in the area of Indochina," the statement added.

Warning Issued

TOKYO (UPI)—Communist China said today it will stand idly by while "U.S. imperialists" extend the war in South Viet Nam to North Viet Nam.

The warning came in a statement by Gen. Lo Jui-Ching, vice-premier and chief of the general staff of the Chinese army.

His statement was transmitted by the official New China news agency.

"We will do our utmost to support the Vietnamese peoples' struggle against U.S. imperialism aggression," Lo said.

"Should U.S. imperialism act in disregard of others' views and dare to impose aggressive war upon us, we are prepared and we know how to deal with their aggression."

The B.C. government was urged this afternoon to consider taking over inspection and maintenance of standards of lumber exports from B.C. (See earlier story P. 11)

The telegram was sent by E. P. O'Neal, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, following a morning meeting of unions that would be affected by a strike of lumber inspectors.

The telegram, addressed to Labor Minister Leslie Peterson, said a real danger confronted the province because lumber operators refused to agree to proper standards of grading.

"Action by the government on this matter would avert the possibility of a serious tieup of the economy and protect customers from sub-standard products," the telegram said.
